Russian spacemen shot at

MOSCOW (AP) — A youth described by the Foreign Ministry as mentally deranged fired several pistol shots Wednesday at a motorcade honoring the four newest space heroes and carrying two Soviet leaders.

A chauffeur and an escort riding a motorcycle were wounded. Cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy, whose flight in Soyuz 3 last October blazed the way for the four's successful space linkup last week, was cut on the neck by flying glass as a bullet struck the driver of his limousine.

There was speculation that the youth was aiming at Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny, riding in a closed car behind. But the Foreign Ministry Thursday in announcing the incident nearly 24 hours after it happened refused to confirm this.

The leaders were several cars behind Beregovoy's limousine.

The youth was grabbed by spectators and immediately arrested by the police. The Foreign Ministry refused to identify him or give a possible motive.

It seemed clear, however, that the youth was not aiming at the cosmonauts who rode Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5 into orbit and achieved the world's first manned linkup and transfer of men from one spaceship to the other.

The four, Vladimir Shatalov, Boris Volyniy, Alexei Yeliseyev and Yevgeny Khromov, were standing in the back of an open car. The closed limousine carrying Beregovoy was the second car behind that of the four, who would have been easy targets.

The reluctance of the Foreign Ministry and other official channels to elaborate on the case gave rise to speculation that there was more to the incident than was immediately made public.

Firearms are strictly controlled in the Soviet Union and assassination attempts on public figures here have not been heard of for years.

Bill would end bias in clubs

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Pennsylvania state senator, after resigning from three private clubs which he said practiced discrimination, proposed legislation Thursday that would result in such organizations losing their licenses to sell alcoholic beverages.

Sen. Frederick H. Hobbs, a Republican from Pottsville, said his bill, to be introduced early next month, would prohibit discrimination based on race, color or creed by most, but not all, of the 4,454 private clubs licensed by the Liquor Control Board.

Hobbs said he would exempt such organizations as the Knights of Columbus, Catholic War Veterans, Jewish War Veterans and clubs that limit their membership to particular ethnic groups as long as they did not bend their restrictions to favor whites.

Sen. Scott introduces bill abolishing Electoral College

OTTAWA NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., Thursday proposed a constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College and provide for the allocation of Electoral votes by congressional district.

As proposed, Scott's plan would do away with the office of elector thus eliminating what he called the "dangerous arbitrariness" of individual electors casting votes.

The Scott proposal would give two votes to the candidate winning a plurality of each state corresponding to each state's representation in the senate.

The ticket would also win one electoral vote for each congressional district in which it carries a plurality. Thus, if a candidate won a plurality in every Pennsylvania Congressional district, he would receive the same 27 electoral votes he now gets for winning a plurality of the state.

Another change proposed by Scott is that if there is no candidate with a majority of the national electoral vote, a joint session of Congress would determine the winner from the top three tickets.

At present, the House chooses the presidential winner and the Senate the Vice-presidential victor.

"The time is ripe for electoral reform," Scott said in introducing his amendment. "What we witnessed in the 1968 presidential campaign need not ever happen again."

Death, destruction hits three counties

HAZLEHURST, Miss. (AP)—A devastating tornado sliced a path of death and destruction across central Mississippi Thursday, claiming 31 lives as it moved across three counties.

Senate confirms Hickel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel won delayed confirmation from the Senate Thursday after extensive senatorial criticism of his appointment as secretary of the interior in the Nixon administration.

And senators approved also the appointment of California industrialist David R. Packard as deputy secretary of defense, rejecting a protest about his financial holdings.

The two nominations are the only ones by President Nixon that have stirred any substantial challenge.

Hickel was confirmed by a vote of 73 to 16, with all opposition from Democrats.

Several Democrats who voted for him said they did so with reservations but in support of the tradition a new president is entitled to have the Cabinet officers he wants.

Hickel drew criticism for his statements on conservation. Questions were raised also in the Senate Interior Committee and on the floor about his personal financial holdings and associations in areas that might come under his jurisdiction as secretary.

His defenders argued that conservationists' concern about Hickel is unfounded, that he is divesting himself of all holdings that might suggest a conflict of interest, and that he will serve with distinction as secretary.

He underwent five days of committee scrutiny and the nomination was debated for two days on the floor.

All the other 11 new Cabinet members were confirmed unanimously in rapid-fire order immediately after Nixon was inaugurated Monday.

Hickel, 49, has made a fortune in 17 years in Alaska, where he arrived from Kansas. He has been governor for two years.

The vote to confirm Packard was 82 to 1, with Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., casting the lone negative vote.

Gore said Packard's nomination "constitutes a conflict of interest as clear as the nose on your face."

Police feared more bodies would be found in the debris. Uprooting trees and grinding buildings into rubble, the twister moved in from the west at 6:25 a.m. and knifed through a predominantly Negro area just south of Hazlehurst.

A series of tornadoes then moved northeastward into Simpson and Smith counties, about a half hour later.

Heralded by an overwhelming roar and ominous darkness, the tornadoes alternately wrecked and spared buildings in almost whimsical fashion. Some were smashed to rubble, others disappeared completely and still others appeared untouched.

Search parties hunted heavily wooded areas along the tornado route and dug through the debris.

"It sounded like train engines, jet airplane motors and other big motors, roaring so loud you couldn't hear," said Clarence Buckley of Harrisville. "It stopped in about two minutes and all was quiet."

A school bus parked nearby was blown a quarter-mile away with the body separated from the chassis and seats scattered through a field. The field was littered with dead chickens and ducks.

The scene was repeated throughout the three-county area, where officials lost count of the injury list.

Mayor Paul Kemp of Hazlehurst estimated that 150 persons were treated at the Hazlehurst hospital alone, and many others were sent to hospitals in Jackson and Brookhaven.

Volunteers and organized search parties combed the Hazlehurst area for victims through the evening. At one point a bulldozer pushed out a dam to drain a farm pond where two children were feared lost. The children were not found.

Enoch Gilmore, father of the children, said 15 people lived in the house atop a bluff overlooking the pond and the two children had not been located after the tornado hit.

Riot police halt students at Sorbonne

PARIS (AP) — Behind the red and black flags of revolution and anarchy, students took over the office of the rector of the Sorbonne for two hours Thursday and fought with riot police on the streets of the Latin Quarter.

The flags, the wrecking of the rector's office, the police clubs, and student marches—these things on a hazy, warm winter day made the events almost a flashback to the student revolt of last spring.

Police reported 200 arrests.

After the Sorbonne had been cleared Thursday night, 500 undergraduates seized the administration building of the branch at Vincennes, outside Paris. Student trouble was also reported at Caen in Normandy, Besancon in southeastern France, and at the capital's Technical Institute.

Visit Cuba, pay bill later

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. airlines have established a good credit link with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro so that passengers on planes hijacked to Havana can be properly accommodated.

The "land-now, pay later" system works through neutral Switzerland. By the time a U.S. plane lands in Havana, the State Department has contacted the Swiss Embassy there, which promises to pay the Cubans for all expenses. Later the Swiss bill the State Department which passes the tab on to the airlines.

A hijacking to Cuba costs an airline between $2,500 and $3,500 in landing fees, fuel, weather reports, and food and lodging for passengers.

"The charges are fair," a State Department spokesman said. "The bill is roughly comparable to what it would cost to land a plane unexpectedly in a U.S. airport—though the hotel and meals probably aren't as good."

Among hijacked passengers, Castro has developed a mixed reputation as a host.

"They kept up sitting around the Havana airport for 15 hours until around midnight," recalled Marguerite Eacker, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She visited Havana Sept. 20 via Eastern Flight

950. "They put us on a bus to Varadero then they stuck us in a fleabag hotel."

"They sure fed us well," said Jim Hatler of Dallas, who was on the same flight. He remembers steak for lunch, roast beef or lobster for dinner and ham and eggs for breakfast.

Airlines said the direct bills to Cuba are only part of the cost of a hijacking. Schedule changes, the cost of bringing back passengers in other aircraft and the removal of planes from regular routes push up the bill.

An Eastern Air Lines spokesman put the total cost at between $7,500 and $10,000 per hijack.

Newlyweds visit Eisenhower farm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Newlyweds Julie and David Eisenhower arrived at the farm home of former President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower for an overnight visit Thursday.

The young couple are guests of Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, grandmother of David, who reopened the home earlier this month while her famous husband remained a patient in Washington's Walter Reed Hospital.

Skipper gives emotion-packed account of confession

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The skipper of the Pueblo—tears streaming, his voice an anguished cry—said Thursday North Koreans attempted to force a spying confession from him by pretending to shoot him as he knelt before them, so shaken he could say only: "I love you, Rose, I love you Rose."

Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher said he finally confessed later after they threatened to shoot his crew one by one, starting with the youngest—and that night he tried, vainly, to commit suicide by drowning himself in a water bucket.

Bucher's blonde wife, Rose, sobbed and dug her fists into her eyes as she heard her husband testify before a Navy board of inquiry. He finally broke down, so a recess had to be called. The board has warned him he may have violated regulations by surrendering his intelligence ship.

Of the confession, he said: "Some time during the night I attempted to commit suicide by drowning myself in a bucket of water in my room, but was unable to accomplish this."

"Mentally I was quite disturbed, partly because of the embarrassment this confession might have caused the United States. And I realized they needed me alive more than anyone else in the crew for public appearances that I was afraid of and knew were coming."

He said he was unable to eat or sleep for several days because he was haunted by the thought that secret information in the Pueblo had been compromised.

Bucher testified standing during the morning session when he broke down, but was seated during the afternoon session. He was excused at the end of the day—subject to later recall.

The court then said it would hold closed sessions to discuss classified — secret — subjects starting today and extending through Tuesday, with Sunday off.

The 41-year-old officer, describing interrogation by his captors, said a North Korean shouted as Bucher knelt: "Kill the son of a bitch."

Bucher added, referring to a guard with a gun pointed at his head: "The gun clicked, but it didn't go off, and I didn't hear a shell fall to the floor. I felt sure they were going to shoot me."

He said his captors showed him a man they said was a South Korean who had bitten through his lip during horrendous torture while strapped to a wall and told him, "That's what happens to spies, and you are spies, and you will get exactly the same."

"I passed out," he said.

Bucher was in his fourth day of testimony, describing the capture of his ship exactly a year ago and the imprisonment of its crew. He had been usually calm, sometimes tense, until he came to the interrogation.

As he talked he began trembling. The Navy counsel, Capt. William Newsome, strode to him and reached to put a hand on Bucher's arm. His hand fell short but one of Bucher's attorneys put his hand under Bucher's arm as the skipper's legs appeared to wobble. The other attorney unhooked a microphone from around his neck and led him from the courtroom.

Court was recessed. A Navy psychiatrist-medical officer, followed by Mrs. Bucher, still weeping and pale, followed Bucher out.

Earlier, as he appeared near breakdown, Newsome asked if he wanted a recess. "No! No! I would rather get this over with now. I am sure I can do it," Bucher said.

Describing his interrogation,

Bucher said that when he revived after fainting a North Korean officer he nicknamed Super Colonel, or "Super C," seemed to be desperate.

He said the officer told him: "We will now begin to shoot your crew and shoot them in your presence until you sign. And even then if you will not sign, I will make you sign."

The officer said they would start with the youngest, and brought forward Fireman 2-c Howard Bland, the youngest.

"I was not prepared for them to shoot my crew," Bucher said. "I was convinced they would do it. They were animals. I was not prepared to go through things like that," he said, stammering. He paused, wiped his eyes, took a drink of water.

"I was not prepared for this type of mental torture," he said. "I told them at this time, 'I will sign this confession.' I did sign it. I was taken back to my room and a big plateful of food with eggs and other goodies was brought to me...I did not touch it."

The typewritten confession said Bucher was a CIA agent, that his ship intruded into North Korean waters, and that he was trying to put South Koreans ashore.

POW comes home

AKRON, Pa. (AP) — Pfc. Donald G. Smith, released by the Viet Cong after being a prisoner of war in Vietnam for 233 days, got a warm welcome home at a brief civic ceremony at Akron Thursday.

About 1,500 persons gathered in the flag-decorated borough square for a glimpse of Smith. Smith, speaking from a hay wagon converted into a podium, said, "Thank you all for coming out and for being so good to my parents while I was away."

Smith's father, Donald R. Smith, said, "We're all real happy I thought I'd have a lot more to say than this." Then, pointing to his heart, the elder Smith added emotionally, "It's all down in here, but I just can't bring it out."

There were cheers and handshakes, band music and signs of welcome.

Smith appeared surprised and dazed by the whole affair. He posed repeatedly for television and news photographers.

He has been hospitalized since his release by the Viet Cong and this was his first day at home.

Smith and two other GIs, Sp. 4 James Brigham, 21, of Ocala, Fla., and Sp. 4 Thomas N. Jones, 21, of Lynneville, were released by the Viet Cong last New Year's day.

Brigham later died, however, and an Army autopsy blamed medical handling by the Viet Cong for the death.

Smith, a military policeman, was captured during fighting near Phu Khuong in May, 1958.

City woes get Nixon priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon ordered priority studies Thursday of problems affecting the nation's cities. He also ordered planning for effective peacetime use of money now being spent in Vietnam.

Nixon signed an executive order creating a Cabinet-level Council for Urban Affairs and said that, even though nearly three-fourths of the population lives in urban areas, "The American national government has responded to urban concerns in a haphazard, fragmented and often woefully short-sighted manner."

The President challenged the new council, to be directed by political scientist Daniel P. Moynihan, to come up with "coherent, consistent positions as to what the national government would hope to see happen; what it will encourage, what it will discourage."

Nixon named council subcommittees, each headed by a Cabinet officer, to look into nine problem areas. He was said to feel that these must be dealt with over the "near term." They range from a review of welfare programs to questions of crime, mass transit, minority business enterprises and the whole future of the antipoverty effort.

Servicemen die as Paris talks drag on SAIGON (AP) — Up to last weekend, Americans died in battle at the rate of about 32 a day in the 230 days since preliminary peace talks opened in Paris. The U.S. Command's weekly casualty report showed Thursday.

The report said 196 Americans were killed in combat in the week of Jan. 12-18, the highest weekly death rate of 1969. This pushed the total since the peace talks began May 13 to 8,049.

With South Vietnamese and enemy casualties also higher last week, military spokesmen attributed the rising rate to increasing action in the far north and in the central highlands.

There have been no major battles, but there have been a series of clashes from the central highlands northward to around the big military base at Da Nang.

Last week's U.S. death toll compared with 151 the previous week. The report listed 1,277 wounded, of whom 537 were hospitalized.

South Vietnamese battle deaths last week totaled 292, up from 183 the previous week. It was the heaviest weekly loss in more than three months.

Allied headquarters said 2,420 enemy soldiers were killed last week, compared with 2,190 the week before.

Former Viet Cong prisoner, Army PFC Donald Glen Smith, 20, is welcomed home Thursday by crowd in Akron, Pa.

Britain, Soviet open talks on Mideast peace terms

LONDON (AP) — Britain began discussing with the Soviet Union possible terms of a Middle East peace Thursday but insisted any settlement must rest on Arab-Israeli agreement.

A communication from Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart to the Kremlin thus aligned the British with the United States by accepting Russia's peace plan as one basis for discussion. But like the Americans the British made clear alternative proposals also should be examined.

The move appeared to separate the British and Americans somewhat from France which has endorsed Moscow's program for a phased Arab-Israeli settlement in virtually unqualified terms.

The French, who have formally urged early Big Four talks on the Middle East, announced they may send defensive weapons to Lebanon, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Last month President Charles de Gaulle banned arms shipments, including paid for Mirage jets, to Israel following the reprisal raid on Beirut airport in December. In the aftermath of that Israeli attack which destroyed 13 Arab airliners, the Lebanese succeeded, after weeks of internal bickering, in forming a 16-man government. Premier Rashid Karami immediately pledged to introduce a national draft, fortifying Lebanon's frontier with Israel and coordinate policy with fellow-Arab states.

The Soviet peace plan, delivered to the United States, France and Britain around New Year's, translated a November, 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution into a five-stage program.

It gave U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring a key role for the implementation of the package program beginning with the phased withdrawal of Israeli forces from war-won territories and providing for an end of Arab belligerency against the Jewish state.

Parents charge course harmful

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Evanston Township High School has agreed to investigate parental complaints that a faculty member's "sensitivity training" course made their kids too sensitive, to the point of hysteria and sleepwalking.

Central figure in the community tempest is Thomas Klein, 27, an English teacher who conducted the training sessions during weekend nonschool hours and without school sponsorship.

Klein said he got the idea from management training courses designed to make executives more sensitive to the feelings of subordinates and co-workers.

In one of his exercises students crawled around the floor swathed in blankets, identifying each other by touch. They also sat in a circle passing a loaf of bread from hand to hand, and stood face to face mimicking each other's moves and gestures.

Klein said the results were great—some of the students began writing "poetry that is beautiful" and the overall quality of classwork improved. He added that the training enabled participants to "lose their feelings of guilt" and "not to be afraid of their desires."

The parents who complained to the school told a different story.

One mother said her daughter became hysterical after one of the training sessions. Others said their teen-agers were unable to sleep.

A number of parents said they had allowed their children to take the training in the belief that the sessions were a part of school work.

Said School Principal Clyde Slocum: "We have already asked Klein to tell us about these weekend sessions and now we will go into the matter more thoroughly. Klein is a good teacher and up to now we have never had any complaints about him."

The sessions have been halted, at least temporarily, and parents of the 56 students in Klein's classes have been invited to attend a meeting Sunday afternoon to discuss the program.

About 40 students have attended one or more of the eight training sessions Klein has conducted.

Proposed $360,000 budget holds line on Pike taxes

MILFORD — A $360,000 proposed budget for 1969 was unveiled Thursday by the Pike County Commissioners.

The budget, an increase of just under $10,000 over the 1968 budget, retains the current eight mill county tax rate.

Following are the five major expense items in the proposed new budget with last year's total in parenthesis:

Expenditures
Administration, $126,639 ($157,859); judicial, $79,379 ($62,936); correction, $28,520 ($31,275); welfare, $35,600 ($34,854); miscellaneous, $89,861 ($63,613).

Following are the five major revenue sources for the proposed new budget with last year's total in parenthesis:

Revenues
Balance from preceding year, $67,539 ($68,660); taxes, $252,995 ($248,100); Department of Forest and Waters for State Forest lands, Game Commission and Erie Bonds, $12,678 ($11,980); welfare, $6,000 ($8,200).

The commissioners anticipate receiving a total $232,400 in property taxes this year in addition to $11,000 from 1968 taxes; $9,000 from delinquent taxes and $595 from unseated lands taxes.

The largest single expense item in the judicial department is the $26,100 for the grand and traverse jurors. Last year's appropriation for jurors was $15,000.

Murder trial cost

The $11,000 increase is due to the pending murder trial of James Michael Olenick of Port Jervis, N.Y., accused of slaying Robert Ziepe in his Hemlock Farms home. Commissioners this week said murder trials cost the county from $10,000 to $12,000.

Another increase expenditure in the judiciary is the $6,000 budgeted for the probation officer. John F. Frank who died recently, received $2,000 in that post.

In the miscellaneous category, for which a total $89,861 has been appropriated, major expense items are $5,000 for group insurance, $8,100 to the Pike County Agricultural Extension Service, $7,500 to the Soil Conservation, $5,500 to Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council, $4,000 to Mental Health and $4,000 for the Public Defender.

The budget is scheduled to be adopted during the February 17 commissioner's meeting. It is now available for inspection.

Traffic fatalities increase

HONESDALE — A record number of traffic fatalities occurred in Wayne County last year, according to an annual report filed by Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings.

Jennings reported 18 traffic fatalities of which three were triple deaths.

Overall, Jennings had 104 cases in 1968 compared to 99 cases in 1967.

Jennings reported that 19 autopsies were performed compared to 25 in 1967. Two inquests were also conducted in 1968.

The report, filed with Wayne County Prothonotary Howard H. Raught, gives the following breakdown on the deaths: accidental falls, two; accidental fires, two; acute alcoholism, one; auto accidents, 18; drowning, three; electrocution, one; exposure, one; exposure and carbon monoxide fumes, one; heat exhaustion, one; natural deaths, 66 and suicides, three.

Deaths investigated

A death which occurred in the Wayne County Jail has been referred to the district attorney's office for further investigation. Another death is still under investigation pending laboratory results.

Jennings reported that all victims of fatal automobile accidents were given tests for alcohol in the blood and drugs. Jennings, serving his first term as coroner, had earlier announced plans to step-up investigations into all violent deaths.

Stanley Gearhart moved to the board of trustees as the retiring president, joining Frank Jones, Wesley Akers, Arthur Frey and Webster Gilpin in that body. Walter Steiger is the outgoing trustee.

First aid officials named were Drs. A. V. Lupeho, Frank Uridel and R. A. Christman, all of Newfoundland.

State awards scholarships to 44 Pike County youths

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — Records of the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency indicated Thursday that a number of Pike County youths are among the more than 66,000 Pennsylvania students attending institutions of higher learning on scholarships from PHEAA.

Officials of PHEAA point out that the selection of the scholarship recipients is a "careful process" involving a wide variety of factors, including educational costs at the student's school, a standardized determination of how much the student and his parents should contribute, number of dependent children in the family, number of other children in college at the same time, and parents' assets and liabilities. (An Internal Revenue Service Income Tax Report is the source of the income data.)

The following are 1968-1969 state scholarship recipients from Pike County, listed by college, name of recipient and amount of scholarship listed in that order:

DINGMANS FERRY

Cedar Crest College, Ave Maria D. Cassell, $800; East Stroudsburg State College, Ronald W. Shepherd, $550; Mansfield State College, Carl D. Arnold, $800; and Western Michigan University, Andrew M. Jugan, $800.

Racetrack plans given to Jaycees

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Western Pocono Jaycees had David Montgomery, president of Pocono International Raceway, as their guest speaker at the recent regular membership meeting in Gilbert Inn.

Montgomery told the 20 Jaycee members in attendance of the projected plans for the raceway and the desire of the raceway to cooperate with the West End communities.

The Community Development Attitude Survey committee reported on its plans to distribute 1,500 attitude survey questionnaires in the area covered by the Pleasant Valley School District.

Community resources

Rev. John Nesbitt of Effort, committee chairman, said the questionnaires will deal with the attitudes of the residents on community resources, schools, services, future planning and development.

"This is being done in the interests of a growing community spirit and looking towards the future growth of the area. These will be distributed through local businesses, schools and churches," Rev. Nesbitt announced.

"Initial distribution will start Feb. 1 and will continue to Feb. 15. We are hoping for a good response because the future community activities of the Jaycees will be based on the negative and positive results of the survey," John Neff, Jaycee president said.

The significant results will be made a matter of public knowledge after all returns have been processed. Committee members assisting Rev. Nesbitt are Kenneth Altomose, Thomas Mackes, and Peter Lambert.

The Western Poconos Jaycees are cooperating with Pocono Mountain Jaycees in celebrating of Jaycee Week which continues through this week.

The next regular meeting of the Western Jaycees will be Thursday, Feb. 6 at the Gilbert Inn.

Trooper Alfred Drozdowski of Stroudsburg State Police will discuss the subject of narcotic drugs in Monroe County.

The annual Christmas Lighting Contest awards will be presented at the meeting.

Creek causeway planned

HARRISBURG — Secretary Maurice K. Goddard, Department of Forests and Waters, has announced the issuance of a permit to the Wright Contracting Company for a temporary causeway across the Bushkill Creek in Palmer Twp., Northampton County.

This announcement is the result of coordinated efforts by the Department of Forests and Waters, Department of Highways and the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

The causeway will be constructed of rock and will contain six 36-inch diameter pipes to pass normal flows. To be removed by March 15, 1969 the causeway will enable the contractor to dispose of 75,000 cubic yards of material without creating objectionable turbidity in the stream. After it is filled the disposal area can be developed for industrial plants and related facilities.

Robert J. Bielo, Executive Director of the Fish Commission, has arranged to delay their stocking program until after that date.

No difference in upheavals

President Richard M. Nixon received his first taste of violence in the streets on Monday, moments after he was sworn into office as the 37th president of the United States.

A small, hard core of dissatisfied youths hurled sticks, stones, bottles, balls of tinfoil and obscenities at the new president.

Chicago in miniature form unfolded against a president who hadn't been in office long enough to warrant praise or protest. Or brilliant minds of the street, those that have protested everything in the past, felt it only proper to continue these stupid protests against the new president.

A total of 300 or 400 youths not only displayed anger against Nixon, but smashed downtown windows in Washington and also cracked a number of windshields in police cars. They also disabled cars by disconnecting wires.

Police and federal troops finally brought the newest of national uprisings to an end.

But, this is the same type of action that drew oaths of support, pity and encouragement in Chicago. It may have been smaller in size, but it was exactly the same as that which unfolds in Chicago and even in Miami, at the Republican National Convention.

Demonstrations of this kind aren't a right. These types of displays are actually an abuse of a right. We are no longer obligated to allow shows of this type. Peaceful assembly and equally peaceful demonstrations, yes. But, upheavals, no.

The United States has been abused too long by individuals who care nothing about their country, their flag or their home. They will go to any length to make an impression.

But acts of treason are going entirely too far.

Informative statistics

Now that we've finally digested the proposed national budget, worried at great length about the budget that faces Pennsylvania and grown concerned with centralized tax collection, we really have some truly factual information in which to sink our teeth today.

The facts and figures that we will spread before you have special interest for the father of the household, or junior when he is forced to take interest in the family car, other than actual driving.

The information deals with automobiles and the appearance of the family machine — not only here but across the United States.

Contrary to popular belief, most people don't wait for good weather to wash their cars and northerners have their cars washed more often than southerners, according to a survey made public by a car-wash company.

However, residents of the south have cleaner automobiles than do their brothers in the north, who are continually waging a battle against spattered snow, slush and the salt that is spread on city streets and rural highways.

The northeast portion of the United States leads in frequency of car washes, followed by the midwest, northwest, south, southwest and Rocky Mountain states. The Rocky Mountain states are hampered by the fact that heavy snows and no thaws sometimes make car washing impossible.

Cleanest cars, according to the survey, are found in the south and southwest, where it snows rarely, if ever. This information puts the damper on the ecstatic white stuff, of which poets wax romantically.

The northeast, which leads in car washes, also has the dirtiest cars, with the midwest a close second. Small towns everywhere have cleaner cars than big cities.

Okay, now, easterners, rally around and bear down on that brush! We just gotta take over the top spot in car hygiene. If we band together, we can be successful.

Sizing him up

Jim Bishop

Living in prison

(Second of two - part series)

I distrust men who thump their chests and shout: "My mission is to suffer." These are the political paranoiacs.

Fidel Castro, 32 years of age when I saw him, had been uttering the phrase for years. I had thought of him as a muddled messiah, but he sounded like a vengeful martyr.

The Batista generals who had, at Christmastime, 1958, agreed to lay down their arms so that Castro could win his revolution without firing a shot were now on trial in a Havana amphitheatre. The prosecutor, the judges, and the 18,000 spectators all shouted vile accusations at the generals. It was a Latin copy of the Vishinsky purge trials in Moscow, 1934.

It was not enough to shoot men by the hundreds. Dr. Castro needed a bigger fire for his revolution. So he took dead aim at the United States and began to ridicule the Colossus to the north. Along the length of Cuba, intellectuals began to sail away in heavy seas. Castro called the U.S. "the land of the gringos."

The bearded ones, who had served in Castro's army, had never been paid. They were told to examine the shops in Havana, take whatever they pleased, and give the manager a receipt for the merchandise. The 26th of July revolution would, in time, pay the shopowner. It didn't happen.

Soviet bloc goal

The true goal of Fidel Castro was to establish a Soviet bloc nation in the Western Hemisphere and to export Communist revolution to Central and South America. It was a gigantic ambition and, if it had been successful, Dr. Castro would be the most powerful socialist outside of the Presidium in Moscow. In 10 years, he has accumulated nothing but failures.

His sole success was in repelling the Bay of Pigs invasion. When the Cubans debarked from offshore American ships, Castro was waiting. President Eisenhower had secretly endorsed the Bay of Pigs. His successor, John F. Kennedy, had agreed to allow it to proceed, but he had denied the Cubans fighter planes and bomber planes. A lot of invaders bled to death along the swampy beaches.

He did not fail when CIA photos showed that Castro was building missile sites for the Russians. The I.R.M.'s had a range of 1,500 miles and could hit anything in the U.S. as far north as Boston and as far west as Kansas City. The confrontation between Kennedy and Khrushchev was won by Kennedy with a single sentence: "This country will regard any missile fired (from Cuba) at the United States as having been fired by the Soviet Union."

Since that time, Fidel Castro has spent his time trying valiantly to build the sagging economy of Cuba. He works his people hard; they must "donate" days off to unpaid labor in the fields. Sugar, which once sold on the world market at six cents a pound, can now be bought for two cents.

Production drops

The harder Cuba works, the less it produces. The intellectuals have left the country. Physicians, surgeons, engineers and lawyers fled to the sanctity of the United States. The machinery of progress has broken down. Automobiles lie dead in ditches because Cuba cannot make spare parts, and the U.S. will not sell them.

The Castro government confiscated American businesses. This is profitable until the time comes for proper management, proper replacements and a proper sales force to sell the merchandise. Now and then, a friendly journalist is admitted to Cuba to copy Castro's three-hour harangues and publish them in the press of the world.

After a decade of revolution, Cuba seldom makes news anywhere. For cash, it must turn to Russia and the mother country sets harsh terms for loans. Che Guevara is dead. The best academic teachers have left the country. Scores of thousands of families have sailed away in small boats.

In my estimation, there is no chance that the Cubans who remain on the island will start a counter-revolution. They have no leadership, no arms, no strength. Soon, they will have no will.

All of the newspapers, all of the periodicals, recite identical Communist credos. It is dangerous for old friends to speak against Castro, even in the privacy of the home.

Years ago, Fidel Castro served time in the prison on the Isle of Pines. Now he lives in a bigger prison, with no way out...

Cleaning office

WASHINGTON — Well, I've been sitting here trying to clean out the office. I've collected a lot of things during the last couple of administrations and, since it appears I won't be needing them again, they're just cluttering up the place.

Let's see, now, what can go? Those 24 unopened cans of chili, for one thing, and that gallon of barbecue sauce. Never did like chili and avoided eating it whenever possible. Still, kept in a highly visible place on a shelf behind my desk, those items were useful when it came to impressing visiting firemen.

(They'd be talking to me and, after spying the chili and barbecue sauce, suddenly say, "By the way, how's the president?" I'd say, "He's fine, just fine. Of course, a little indignation now and then..." and then we'd all share a knowing laugh. So much for that routine. Have to get another one.)

Hat goes

And my cowboy hat. Only wore it once and it fell down over my eyes. But hanging there on the coat rack it looked splendid and nobody realized it didn't fit. All I had to do was dust it once in awhile. The hat can go. Maybe I could pour all the chili and the barbecue sauce into it and drop the whole mess from the window.

Better not, though. Might hit Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and I hear he hates chili worse than I do. Here's a whole box of stuff I'll no longer need: A very thin box of South Vietnamese Military Heroes, plus a file jacket of captured enemy documents. The book can go to the JFK

Library and I'll send the documents over to Joe Alsop for his collection.

Why, my goodness, here's a drawer full of Hubert Humphrey jokes, some only slightly used. I think I'll give them to Professor Humphrey's students. They can use them to taunt him in class. What's this under the jokes? Ah, a string of love beads. A reminder of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's folly. Maybe Mayor Richard Daley would like them.

What I need now are some new status symbols. Something to make visitors think I'm in very thick with the new administration. Hmmmm, the society pages report that President Nixon likes macaroni and cheese. The only prepared macaroni and cheese I've seen comes frozen. Now how can I keep that on the shelf in plain view?

An office computer might help. Maybe I can buy a used one, cheap. It doesn't even have to work. Just sit there, looking as though it's programmed for good government. That should do it, plus a copy of "My Six Crises" for the desk.

Crews cleaned up the streets after the Inaugural. Too bad they couldn't have cleaned up the Yippies before the parade.

What a wonderful country. Today, every young man has the opportunity to wreck the college of his choice.

Know what they call the grounds of the Treasury Building? "Green Acres."

Congressmen may get another pay increase. It's a good thing those politicians get paid by the year — and not by the job.

Now that the Inaugural festivities are over, Washington can get back to normal — confused!

Mishmash Murdock

BRUNO'S DREAM. By Iris Murdoch. Viking. $5.75.

Just what Miss Murdoch is driving at in this murky novel is a puzzle.

The narrative is keyed—for no apparent reason — to the dying days of an 83-year-old patriarch named Bruno.

The characters are an odd lot. There is Bruno's estranged son Miles, a middle-aged fumbler who thinks he is a poet; still mooning about his lost first wife, he practically ignores his calm second wife, Diana. There is Bruno's widowed son-in-law, Dandy, a crude lecher who has been having a liaison with Bruno's household maid. There is Diana's sickly sister Lisa, who seems to attract all the males in the cast.

Maybe the author is mocking the sex routine.

She has Danby clownishly getting a crush on Diana, and then another crush on Lisa. She has Miles falling into an infatuation with Lisa.

It is a grotesque plot. Besides Bruno's disconnected involvement with these eccentric events, there is a bit of side play involving Bruno's male nurse, who seems to pop up like a spy whenever anything is going on.

The various love dialogues are amazing. They sound like sheer Victorian corn, to the accompaniment of violins playing "Hearts and Flowers" of thing that preceded soap operas of our current electronic era.

The author is an accomplished writer, credited in the past with a sense of humor. Just how she got mixed up in this mishmash is difficult to understand.

Exploitation of nation

STRONG WIND. By Miguel Angel Asturias. Delacorte. $6.95.

Asturias, a Nobel Laureate in literature, has set this novel in an unnamed Central American country resembling his native Guatemala. This volume is the first in a trilogy in which the author bitterly attacks Yankee economic imperialism.

It is banana country. The coastal lowlands, blistering with heat and steaming with humidity, produce the green gold fruit which is marketed by Tropical Banana, Inc., a Chicago-based, giant corporation which dominates the economy and government of the banana belt.

This is a story of exploitation. Tropical Banana has absolutely no regard for the lives or welfare of the peasants who live in the groves, and grinds them into poverty and sickness. Many of the peasants have come down from the barren, eroded highlands to work in the tropical heat, only to find they have traded one form of suffering for another. Asturias records their colloquial stories with skill.

The principal events of this volume is an uprising of the workers. Ironically, one of the leaders of the resistance is a North American who finally is revealed as having played a dual role.

Asturias gives a vivid portrayal of the daily lives of both the peasants and the North Americans. In a translation by Gregory Rabassa, his style is extravagant and florid, but appropriately effective. His social muck raking will remind North American readers of the novels of Upton Sinclair.

Miles A. Smith

Wisecracking youth in 1934

LOVELAND. By Glendon Swarthout. Doubleday. $4.95.

The year is 1934, and 17-year-old Perry Dumigan has set forth with his accordion to join a combo at a summer resort in northern Michigan. He has two goals in mind — to earn some money for college (this was during the Great Depression, remember) and to see if Love will smile on him.

Even without the latter, the summer is quite an experience for such a callow small-town youth.

And Perry falls in love at first sight. The girl is Mary Wallat, 19, who has been to college and is slinging hash at the resort.

The trouble is that Mary is determined not to fall in love, but to find a wealthy husband; that's because the Depression has driven her father into bankruptcy and illness, and she wants to recoup the family fortunes. Conveniently for her, who should show up in his yacht but Logan Cooke, a real live playboy who is heir to a $9 million shoe fortune. He also happens to be twice Mary's age.

Swarthout has written a genuinely comic novel, full of amusing scenes and clever twists of plot. He also has caught the flavor and spirit of the period. For example, in those days the young communicated by means of real snappy repartee, and he has written the story in that style.

The author of "Where the Boys Are" has produced a really swinging entertainment. Or as they used to say in the old days, it takes you like Grant took Richmond.

People tell own anecdotes

A ROOMFUL OF HOVINGS And Other Profiles. By John McPhee. Farrar, Straus. $5.95.

McPhee's skill as a writer of biographical profiles is based on a simple formula. First you find a personality whose life and works are inherently intriguing — preferably someone who is offbeat. Then you probe and dig for all the engaging anecdotes about this individual, and wrap them deftly in the subject's own first-person quotes.

Four men are limned in this collection of pieces, and one group. The group portrait is about the Fellows in Africa of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, an interesting study of a program in which 52 specialists have helped some of the emerging nations in their governmental and economic problems.

Of the four individuals, Thomas Pearsall Field Hoving, the young director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, probably is the most fascinating, and McPhee has captured Hoving's ebullience, wit and drive.

The piece on Euell Gibbons — who knows more about edible wild foods than anyone in the country — was written after the author had accompanied Gibbons on a foraging trip along the Susquehanna River and the Appalachian Trail. You can practically taste the winter cress, ground cherries, mint tea, walnuts and other wild edibles they ate.

Another profile is on Robert Twynnam, an old coddler who takes care of the one-fifth acre of grass on the tennis courts of Wimbledon, and the final one is a picture of Temple Fielding, the rather eccentric writer on travel in Europe.

In all these pieces, McPhee has done an expert job, partly because he lets his subjects tell a major portion of their own stories.

The Pennsylvania Story

Cause for concern

HARRISBURG — When Gov. Raymond P. Shafer the other day pulled State Police Lieutenant Colonel Paul A. Rittelmann from retirement to head up the Drug Control Division of the State Department of Health with the title of Deputy Secretary of Health, more than one eyebrow inched skyward.

Shafer's move of course was aimed at reorganizing and making more effective the enforcement of drug and narcotics control in the Keystone State — with which few, if any, will find fault.

That isn't the point — but when he designated Co. Rittelmann as a "Deputy Secretary" the eyebrows went up.

Reason is that deputies are next to the top, second in command, in departmental bureaucratic organization tables. In other words, top level in a department is the secretary who runs the department as a whole. Next level is the deputy secretary, second in command on the "department" level. Next level down is the bureau, then the division and then the section.

In the governor's own words:

"I have appointed Col. Rittelmann as Deputy Secretary of Health on a temporary basis to take full and complete charge of the Drug Division and to take whatever steps are necessary to give that division better leadership and to enforce the law."

Let's see, that entitles the nearly 30 other divisions in the Department of Health to a deputy secretary — to say nothing of the host of bureaus above the division level!

No 'waste' of talent

Last year the Pennsylvania Legislature passed what is known today as the "1968 Solid Waste Management Act", processing and disposal of solid waste and deals with the planning and enforcement of these standards.

Rigid enforcement under the new act is scheduled for Jan. 1, 1970.

Coincidentally, within the past fortnight a local advertising agency announced the formation of a new company, known as the United Municipal Incinerator Corp. to "engineer, finance, build and operate solid waste disposal systems for municipalities — the announcement going "special to business and financial editors" (not the news media in general).

Among the members of the board of directors of the new concern (referred to in the announcement as prominent Pennsylvania businessmen and "experts in the field of municipal refuse disposal")

Paul M. Lawson, Philadelphia — a member of the State House of Representatives; Matthew J. Ryan, Newtown, Delaware County — member of the State House of Representatives; Alvin C. Bush, Muncy, Lycoming County — member of the State House of Representatives; Craig Truax, Harrisburg — former Republican State Chairman and Secretary of the Commonwealth; William W. Scranton, of Scranton — former governor and member of Congress; James M. Quigley, formerly of Camp Hill (across the river from Harrisburg) during which time he served as a member of Congress and later Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

That time again

Somerset County high school classes are busy primping these days on posture, poise, personality and talent as they prepare for competition in the coveted Pennsylvania Maple Queen contest scheduled to be held in Johnstown, Saturday, Feb. 8.

It is the first event in the annual two-month-long maple season in Somerset County. The nine-day Maple Festival program is scheduled to open in Myersdale March 15 with the Queen coronation ceremonies.

Erma Bombeck

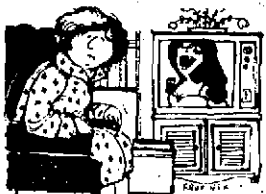

Fed up with smut

Having nothing better to do when I had flue than to hang over a waste can lined with a grocery bag, I turned to television. I should have stuck with the brown paper bag.

What in the world is happening to good taste? Are we becoming a nation of moral drop-outs? On talk show after talk show I heard pseudo-sophisticates defending the nudity and crudity that is invading the theatre. Lines like, "It is handled with sensitivity," "It is presented in an art form," "It is necessary to interpret the story" and even, "This is now, man!"

Chicken feathers! Sex and perversion weren't invented yesterday. They've always been around. We just never substituted them for entertainment before.

Dean Martin and his little "naughties." Rowan and Martin, who get a little more daring each week, and the real snapper was a Johnny Carson show (he was on vacation and was not the host) where a little English girl was being interviewed because she refused to play a part in a movie where she would appear nude. If she had trained a cockroach to stand still when a light went on or played Tippi Tippi Tin on a set of tablespoons I could have applauded, but why she received an ovation from the audience for a stand for decency eluded me.

A movie projectionist once wrote me that a little Goldie Goodie Flicker (where animals talk and Fred MacMurray falls a lot) attracts only a smattering of an audience. A "right now" film has them lined up around the corner. He said parents drop their children off when the theatre opens and have no idea what is playing. This is not true of all parents. Many are going crazy trying to keep up with what their children are being exposed to.

The average television set runs six hours a day. It has very little moral controls. Tuned in long enough, you can hear every word in every book your mother hid in the trunk in the attic. It has possibly the strongest influence on children since the razor strap.

Are we going to delegate to the tube the task of morally educating our children? If the media feel they have no responsibility in sifting out the good from the garbage, someone has to do it. They're our kids. We feed them, clothe them, educate them and pay for their haircuts. Then why are we afraid to make a stand against smut and violence and to see vulgarity for what it is?

All I know is that if I see one more man on television put his hand on the knees of another one with that cute, know-it-all smile, I'm going to need another waste can and another grocery bag!

'Biggest, best' syndrome backfires on Soviet MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet superlatives are running into a law of diminishing returns.

The Russian people are ambitious and prestige-conscious. They like to think and build on a grand scale. But the lure of sheer size has run into pitfalls on several projects recently.

Russian history is full of examples of official efforts to impress people, especially foreigners, with showcase projects. The Soviets have carried on the tradition, sometimes with greater enthusiasm than their pre-revolutionary ancestors.

A new 4,000-room hotel in Moscow, the modernistic Rossiya, is so huge that tourists are constantly getting lost in it. A reporter who showed up there for a late-night appointment found his host's room empty. He descended to the lobby on the opposite side of the hotel—a 20-minute walk, one-way—and came right back. By the time he returned to the room the man was asleep.

A restaurant built into the Ostankino television tower, to provide a panoramic view of Moscow, often finds itself in the clouds. It makes for eerie dining, but likely no view, day or night, from the 1,100-foot level.

The AN22 turboprop plane, first made public in Paris in June 1965, was designed to carry 724 persons. The prototype was billed as the world's largest, but the plane never has appeared for passenger or cargo use.

The AN22 apparently was a descendant of the Maxim Gorky, an eight-engine monster built in 1933 and advertised then as the biggest in the world. It blew up in flight, killing everybody aboard.

Intourist, the travel agency that handles foreigners, is quick to remind visitors of various Soviet firsts, bests and mosts.

One tourist who had his fill of superlatives remarked recently on a pebble beach on the Black Sea:

"Everything is big in the Soviet Union — Even the sand."

Just Between Us—

What with mud on your shoes, the sun on your back, and the spring-like smell of a January thaw, you could feel yourself relaxing even though you know it was just a come-on. That there's no way of omitting February and early March from the calendar.

Wendi Meckes honored on fifth birthday

EFFORT — Wendi Carol Meckes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meckes, celebrated her fifth birthday with a party at her home. Ballerinas formed the decoration theme. Prizes for games were won by Lori Wenzel, Diane Everett and Michael Scheller.

Ice cream and a birthday cake, made and decorated by her grandmother, were served to Diane Everett, Judy Gower, Jany Kunkle, Richie Meckes, Layton Milman, Michael Scheller, Lori Wenzel, Mrs. Dorothy Wenzel, Mr. and Mrs. Layton Milman, Mrs. Kathy Meckes, Mrs. Bonnie Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Murphy, Mrs. Anita Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meckes.

Also sending gifts were Sherri Ace, Roxanne, Pat, Pam and Bobby Boyer, Heidi and Holly Bryson and Jimmie Gower.

Even the sunset, coming at the end of a lengthening day, conspired to relax the guard we unconsciously keep up against winter and its vagaries. It was a sort of guilty enjoyment, like an overweight woman going off her diet you knew you shouldn't be enjoying it so thoroughly.

That and the fact that the flu epidemic seems to be waning except for lingering coughs seemed to put everybody in a more social mood. The first fellowship supper sponsored by the Women's Assn. of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church drew 88 mothers and daughters out.

In our compartmentalized society there aren't too many things that the generations do together. As a matter of fact there aren't too many things to go to for the sheer pleasure of being together.

We seem to need an excuse to further a project, to bear a program, to read the minutes, to bowl or play cards; all of which have rewards of their own.

But if you've ever noticed how hard it is to get a meeting quieted down to begin, how often there's more banter than bidding at the card table, you'll probably admit that the people are there because they like being together. It's nice to acknowledge it for a change.

Reisenwitz clan gathers for golden anniversary

MOUNTAINHOME — A family supper in the Barrett YMCA marked the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Reisenwitz, Sr. of Mountainhome. All family members attended the dinner with a total of 29 present.

Mrs. Reisenwitz, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaller of Mountainhome, became the bride of Arthur Reisenwitz, Sr. on January 22, 1919 in the Stroudsburg home of the late Rev. F. L. Eichner, Lutheran pastor. Mr. Reisenwitz is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Reisenwitz of Mountainhome.

Following the wedding ceremony, the couple reached Cresco Railway station and walked approximately one mile to the Reisenwitz home. The following morning the bride rose at 6 a.m. and prepared breakfast for the entire family.

For the family dinner, Mrs. Reisenwitz received a corsage of yellow rosebuds from the couple's only great-grandchild, six-week-old Ronnie Vogt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Vogt of Cresco. It was pinned to her aqua print dress. Mr. Reisenwitz received a yellow num for the buttonhole of his suitcoat, from Ronnie.

The couple's six children and their spouses attended with their children. Daughter Kay, now Mrs. George Vogt, Jr. of Cresco was present as were Arthur, Jr. and wife, Edna of Cresco; Sara, now Mrs. Ernest Rode of Connecticut; John Richard and wife, Beverly, of Cresco; Paul and wife, Naomi, of Cresco; and Barbara, now Mrs. Joseph Dunlap of Mountainhome. There are 13 grandchildren.

Gold and white streamers and bells decorated the dining room. Feature of the dinner was a three-tier white cake decorated with hearts and topped by gold bells. A floral centerpiece of yellow and white was placed on the center table.

During the family conversations at the dinner, the couple's daughter, Sara, was teased about a period in her childhood when she cried often. Family members noted that each family had a "Sara" whenever a child would cry.

Mrs. Reisenwitz is a crossword puzzle fan and her husband, a semi-retired painter, has a hobby of growing plants indoors.

Student panel heard by teachers' fraternity

EAST STROUDSBURG — A panel of eight Stroudsburg High School students presented their ideas on "Dissent and Values" at the Phi Chapter executive committee of Delta Kappa Gamma Society held at the Inn at Buck Hill Falls.

Panel members were Mary Jane McCloskey, Pat Parker, Bruce Posten, Susan Kovarik, John Appel, Sharlene Mosley, Phillip Sabatine and the chairman, Stephen Szilagyi, tracing the causes and development of dissent in the family, in education, in religion and in politics.

Teachers and students exchanged opinions in the forum discussion which followed the panel presentation.

The welfare system received considerable criticisms both from those wanting and expanded program and those believing in "self-help".

Discrimination in housing was a focal point on the racial question. Three possible solutions were suggested: 1) assimilation of the black community into the larger American society, 2) the maintenance of two separate "pure" communities; and 3) the general strengthening of the black community to insure respect for its people and its rights.

In discussing the alienation and dissatisfaction of today's youth, some teachers cited society's affluence as a cause with young people taking the material aspects of life for granted.

The panel was introduced by Janet Bender and had been assisted in preparation by Anna M. Stem.

The meeting marked the 21st birthday of the organization. President Doris Goerlitz announced that the next general meeting would be held March 15 at Bethany Lodge with Thelma Williams as program chairman. The subject will be "Denmark" presented through slides and comments by Grace Thompson, Ruth Schield and Helen Oldfield will be hostesses.

Suggestions for new members must be presented to Dorothy Nonnemacher by March 1. Mary Jane Reid's membership was transferred from Theta chapter in Connecticut to the local chapter. A "who's who" of members of Phi chapter will be published. Individual photos and paragraph of identification and achievements in the educational field will be collected at the March meeting.

An auction will be held at the May 17 meeting, with the articles made by members from material costing no more than five dollars.

Mary Hall suggested sending books and magazines to foreign countries as an opportunity for service with Catherine Wolverson suggesting that the best means of contact for such services was friendship with someone living there. Miss Hall was complimented for mention in a Keystonean for her creative service projects. Anna Stern asked for articles to be submitted for that state publication.

Epsilon chapter of New Jersey will be invited to attend Phi chapter's November meeting.

The state convention will be held June 6 and 7 at Cocoa Inn. The Fall area conference will be held at Wilkes Barre Sept. 13. Five members will attend the opera "Tosca" in New York on March 1.

A card from International headquarters expressing sympathy on the death of Eloise Bryan was read.

Inaugural shows faith of America

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Symbols of faith clothed the event—Bibles, vows, clergymen, bowed heads and prayer. It was the nation's crowning ritual, the inauguration of a president. And by tradition, it carries an aura of reverence.

"We recognize on this historic occasion that we are 'a nation under God,'" evangelist Billy Graham said in an invocation at ceremonies installing President Richard M. Nixon. "This faith in God is our heritage and foundation."

It is an intangible element, unprescribed and unprompted by official acts of a government which may neither establish nor hinder men's religion. Yet it is marked in many ways, in motto, pledge of allegiance and national anthem, and especially in high solemnities of state.

It "is the American ideal, born at the time of creation itself," said Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin of Los Angeles in an inaugural prayer. He said it began when God first infused humanity with its yearning for knowledge, goodness and freedom, and it shaped the birth of the United States.

As that country's new president took office, another clergyman, Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos of New York also prayed: "We humbly beseech Thee, O Master of our destiny...endow him with holiness of purpose and with total commitment and dedication so that he may serve Thee and Thy will for men...Grant him the power to overcome evil with good, injustice with justice, hatred with love...war with peace."

Five clergymen, Protestant, Jewish, Orthodox and Catholic, offered prayers in the course of the inaugural proceedings. Altogether, the intercessions totaled about 2,000 words, interspersed throughout the event, equalling the inaugural address itself, which also was sprinkled with religious allusions.

"In these troubled times of global turmoil and unrest, our Father, we turn to Thee," prayed Bishop Charles Ewbank Tucker, an African Methodist Episcopal Zion churchman of Louisville, Ky. "Give to our nation a clear vision of the highest good and our leaders a clear judgment as to how the good may be obtained."

The President took his oath on two old family Bibles, one published in 1828 and the other in 1873, both opened to Isaiah 2:4, the great passage foreseeing a day when nations beat their weapons into constructive tools and make war no more.

In a benediction, Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York prayed that the nation would use its "blessed heritage to assure peace, equality and dignity for every person."

The Rev. Dr. Graham, a Baptist, voiced penitence that for "too long have we tried to solve our problems without reference to Thee. Too long have we tried to live by bread alone...Help us this day to turn from our sins..."

"We pray, O God, that as we enter a new era, that we as a nation may experience a moral and spiritual restoration...O God, our new president needs Thee as no man ever needed Thee in leading a people..."

"Give him supernatural wisdom, courage and strength for these years...Grant him an uncompromising courage to do what is morally right. Give him a cool head and warm heart. Give him compassion for those in need."

Rabbi Magnin, tracing American aspirations back to the time of creation, said they originated when God said, "Let there be light" and there was light."

It was, he said, "the light that brought man out of the cave," endowed him with intelligence, morality, the impulse for freedom, the light that inspired the Old Testament prophets and sages and which was nurtured by America's founding fathers. But "the night is long," he prayed, "and it is still dark as far as civilization goes. We will never be perfect, for man is not perfect; but we are on the way. Our country is still great, and it will be greater, with hope in our hearts, and work and rededication. There are a few faint streaks of pink in the sky...We await the dawn...Great God, our King. Amen."

Presbyterian mission funds drop

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. reported recently that mission contributions last year were $2 million below budget requirements and substantially below 1967. It was the sharpest drop in 25 years.

Dr. John Coventry Smith, moderator of the church's general assembly, said cutbacks in personnel, both in the United States and overseas, already are underway. But while mission giving dropped, Smith said the individual Presbyterian increased his contribution to his church by more than 11 per cent.

The mission program, which had been budgeted for $32 million in 1968, operates missions in this country and abroad, as well as offices across American concentrating in Christian education.

Smith said overseas missionaries who retire or resign will not be replaced, already resulting in a drop of 60 from the staff of about 1,100.

He said also that evangelistic, educational and medical programs in the overseas churches have been cut back 5 to 15 per cent, and more reductions are possible.

"The United Presbyterian Church, more affluent than at any time in history, finds itself unable to respond to overseas requests, since even the existing program level cannot be maintained."

Area ecumenical progress defined

CRESCO—The meaning of ecumenism was explored by more than 100 people here at the third annual ecumenical supper in Pocono Central Catholic School.

Rev. Russell Walter called it "a breaking down of partition between Christians seeking to follow Christ." Nearly 200 children and adults gathered for the 6 p.m. covered dish supper which was served by women from the five participating churches: Canadensis United Methodist and Moravian; Mountainhome United Methodist; Keokee Chapel and St. Bernadette's Roman Catholic Church, Canadensis.

Following the dinner, children were shown a film and a nursery for small children was handled by volunteer teens. A panel discussion on the history and tradition of the various churches was presented with Rev. John Zondag of the Canadensis United Methodist Church acting as moderator.

Rev. James Gross, pastor of Canadensis Moravian Church, discussed the history of the 500-year-old denomination which traces back to the beliefs of John Huss who died in 1415.

One of the traditions explained was that of lovefeast which Pastor Gross said was similar to the apostolic common meal and is in no way to be confused with communion.

The lovefeast utilizes buns and a beverage, eaten in the sanctuary during a worship service and is never associated with communion which involves consecration of the bread and wine.

Rev. George Curtis, pastor of Mountainhome United Methodist Church noted that the Wesley brothers, John and Charles, introduced a systematic attitude and the enthusiasm of witness of spirit to Christianity. The systematic attitude is the reason for the name, "Methodism." He also noted that Wesley was influenced by the faith of Moravians on board a ship during a storm. The church ministered to English-speaking peoples.

The Evangelical and United Brethren, Rev. Russell Walters, pastor of Keokee Chapel, pointed out ministered to German-speaking people in a similar area. The two men traced the similar development of the two movements in regard to area of development and ideas and beliefs.

Rev. Zondag described the joining of the Evangelical United Brethren and the Methodist denominations as a "union and not a merger." He said a merger could be compared to a big fish swallowing a little fish, which was an inaccurate picture of the action taken by the two denominations.

Rather, he said it was a union of two denominations to form a third larger denomination. Pastor Curtis noted that at the time of the union there were some 10 million Methodists.

Rev. Russell listed approximately 750,000 members in the EUB denomination at the time of the union which resulted in the change of name. All churches are now United Methodist Churches.

Rev. Andrew Maloney, pastor of St. Bernadette's, Canadensis, spoke on recent changes in the Roman rite. He pointed out that the removal of the communion or altar rail in churches is actually a change back to the way things have been in European churches. "It is actually more of a reversion to the past. We think of updating to recognize the practicality of the times, but the changes are actually forms which have been part of the church for centuries." In reference to communion, Father Maloney said, "We stand now for communion: they stood in the third century, too."

Further changes in the liturgy, Father Maloney pointed out, were actually in keeping with practices in other rites as the Byzantine, Ukrainian and others. The change from Latin to the vernacular, he said was part of the progression since the early church used Aramaic, then Greek and then Latin and in various rites has used the vernacular.

Questions and answers
During the question and answer period which completed the panel discussion, retired Moravian pastor, Rev. George Weinland of Canadensis, described the ecumenical action as a team of horses which once belonged to a Moravian minister in Newfoundland. One horse belonged to the Moravian minister, the other was given to him by the Methodist minister upon his leaving that charge. "The horses pulled together," Pastor Weinland commented, "If the horses could pull together, so can the denominations."

In conclusion, Father Maloney offered a comparison of the success of Sunday's supper with an incident which he reported: An ecumenical meeting was planned by two ministers and two priests, of whom Father Maloney was one. The meeting was to be held at 7:30 p.m. When no one arrived by 8 p.m. the men agreed that publicly might have indicated an 8:30 p.m. meeting time. The pastors agreed to wait until 8:30. At 20 minutes after 8 a man entered the hall and seated himself near the rear of the hall. Father Maloney explained,

"We (the pastors) decided that if Christ had been there, He would have spoken to the man, so we each gave our prepared speech. Then I asked him if he had any questions. The man stood up and said, 'Yes. When are you going to leave so I can look up?'"

Since the janitor of the hall was the only one to show up at the ecumenical meeting, Father Maloney said that the ecumenical movement in that area remained in the friendship between the pastors of the various churches.

Sunday night's dinner and panel discussion was described by the pastors and those attending as a success, and plans will be made for another similar activity.

Church-England upkeep soaring

LONDON (AP) — It now costs an estimated million pounds ($2.4 million) a week to staff and maintain the work of the Church of England here and abroad. This figure is expected to reach 62 million pounds ($148.8 million) a year by 1973, according to the financial advisers of the archbishops of Canterbury and York.

By far the greatest single item of expenditure is providing for the 13,850 clergy (24 million pounds or $57.8 million); then some social welfare and church schools.

A HORSESHOE OVER THE DOOR

Very useful in protecting the hoofs of horses and an important part of the equipment in the enjoyable game of pitching horseshoes. However, to expect a horseshoe placed above the door, in or about one's home, to ward off all danger and trouble and to bring health, wealth and solve all problems is putting faith in a power that does not exist.

The promise found in the Scriptural passage to the effect that "where two or three are gathered together in prayer, there God will be also," is worth more than all of the horseshoes or other charms in existence, in so far as true well-being is concerned.

Attending church is an infinitely better and more wholesome source of bringing true blessings, for at church one may always find fellowship, where two or more are willing and happy to join in prayer. If entered into wholeheartedly the Church will lead the way to power and joy such as horseshoes can never generate within one.

Depletion of Africa's game concerns conservationists

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — As many conservationists see it, Wildlife never had it so bad in Africa.

Once-vast game herds are stalked by poachers, blocked by fences and dispossessed by new dams, missile bases and domestic livestock. Some are killed in the name of scientific game control. Others are afflicted by drought, disease, fires and pesticides.

The black rhino herds of Kenya were depleted over the years by hunters who wanted the horns to be powdered as an alleged aphrodisiac, for sale in the Far East.

Some experts say it has taken man less than 50 years to reduce by two-thirds the migrant wildlife that once roamed East Africa's 700,000 acres of grass and forest land.

In South-West Africa, which is more than twice as big as California, official statistics show more than a quarter million kudu, gemsbok, zebra and ostrich have been killed since 1960. This counts only hides and skins checked at auctions.

Bush fires and chronic poaching threaten an end to Kafue National Park in Zambia as a game conservation territory. During the flood season vast herds of red and black lechwe, a type of buck, come into the green grasslands. From there they are driven to the water's edge by tribesmen who spear them from canoes.

Botswana now licenses not only those whites who hunt for sport, but also tribesmen who kill game for food. This politically unpopular move came after the government discovered that many Africans, equipped with powerful rifles, had turned from subsistence hunting to commercial shooting. One firm bought 600 springbok skins in 1966 and had 10,000 in stock a year later.

An unfortunate side effect of the decade of independence in many emergent countries was shooting orgies in animal sanctuaries. Often in colonial days the "white man's game reserves" were viewed by Africans as keeping them away from hunting grounds traditionally theirs. In many parts of Africa the tribal word for "meat" is the same as "wild animal."

A single control action against black poachers in East Africa in February 1964 turned up 750 dead elephants. Tanzania police recovered 82 tons of poached ivory in 1965, perhaps a fifth of the poachers' annual haul.

In one search of Tsavo National Park in Kenya the remains of 1,200 elephants killed by poachers were found.

Game reserves are not providing a simple answer.

As migration of wildlife into reserves increases, so does pressure on the food supply for animals already there. In one year rangers culled 2,900 elephants and 2,000 hippopotamuses from Uganda's Murchison Falls Park. A hippo can eat 150 pounds of grass a day.

Zambia's game department planned to kill between 3,000 and 6,000 elephants in Luangwa Game Reserve because overpopulation was destroying vegetation and causing starvation. At the end of the dry season as many as 15,000 elephants jam the park's 3,200 square miles.

South Africa erected a 10-strand barbed wire fence around most of Kruger National Park in a vain effort to control hoof and mouth disease. Elephants merely walk through the barrier, lions crawl under it, various buck leap it and smaller beasts slip through the wire.

Drought, bush fires and unrestricted shooting in neighboring Mozambique sent thousands of elephants fleeing into the protected Kruger Park. The number increased by more than 4,000 in 1964-67.

"We simply cannot allow the herds to go on multiplying indefinitely and eat all the food in the park," says Rocco Knobel, director of the National Parks Board.

The government culls elephant, zebra, impala, buffalo and blue wildebeest in Kruger Park. Zebras are caught live and sold outside the reserve. Impala and blue wildebeest are shot at night. Elephant and buffalo are immobilized by drugged darts shot from helicopters and removed later when the herd has moved on.

Culling is unpopular among nature lovers. Many conservationists agree that it remains an uncertain business which may upset ecology, on the ground that one species cannot be annihilated without upsetting nature's balance.

Rangers have shot out leopard because they've killed a few goats or sheep, only to find the baboon population expands quickly to threaten crops. Snakes have been killed and then rodents overrun farms. When crocodile are destroyed the barbel on which they feed can eat every quality fish in the water. If insects are attacked with pesticides then there are fewer insect-eating birds.

Officials disagree on how game parks should be run. Some want them left as close to their pristine state as possible. Others insist on paved roads so the taxpayer can motor in comfort to view the animals.

Most species in Kruger are so used to cars filled with tourists that many animals panhandle food from visitors. Lions like to stretch out on the sun-warmed asphalt on chilly days. They sometimes walk alongside a slowly moving car as buck graze on the other side of the road. This prevents their prey from getting wind of them.

Richard's Bay, north of Durban, was once a 2,795-acre game reserve. Now plans are being completed to build a big seaport and modern city. Not far away, at Lake St. Lucia, South Africa carved its first missile range out of a bird sanctuary. Mkuzi Game Reserve in Zululand will be submerged when a river is dammed for sugar farming.

The Tanzania government plans to build a hotel on the floor of the famous Ngorongoro Crater, described as "one of the wonders of the World" by German zoologist Dr. Bernhard Crazmek. Objections by nature lovers are that construction will frighten vast herds of animals which inhabit the crater. Guides at a hotel 2,000 feet up on the crater's rim guarantee to show tourists 8,000 animals in one day or money back.

Tennis gal serves test to sex bias

By ROBERT S. VAN FLEET
Chief, Otway News Service
Albany Bureau

ALBANY — Will Julia Barash get a chance to play on the boys' tennis team?

If she does, will the boys play their hardest against her? Or, for that matter, play at all?

These and other sensitive and arcane matters will wind up on the desk of New York Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr., as the result of a request by a 17-year-old senior that she be allowed to try out for the boys' tennis team at Monroe-Woodbury High School in Orange County.

The decision to take the matter to the commissioner was made at an hour-long meeting in the Capitol Tuesday attended by legislators, top-level officials of the Education Department, the attorney hired by Miss Barash, and two representatives of the women's unit from Gov. Rockefeller's office.

The girl's attorney hopes the commissioner will make his decision in time for the spring tennis season.

The plea for the dark-haired, champion tennis player, who is also "an A student," was made by Monroe Attorney Malvin T. Davidson at a meeting arranged by Sen. D. Clinton Dominick III, of Newburgh and Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman of Middletown.

Representing the Education Department at the meeting in Dominick's office was Miss Elizabeth Eastman, a counsel who said as a woman she had "ambivalent feelings" about defending present department rules, and Dr. George H. Grover, director of the Division of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Dr. Grover said he interpreted existing regulations as a prohibition against a girl playing on a boys' team in such "non-contact" sports as tennis, swimming, or golf.

"Pilot" approach suggested Davidson, Dominick, and Gilman then asked the education officials whether they would consider the Barash case as a "pilot," perhaps giving her a chance to play to see how it would all work out — including the reaction of the boys she might play against.

Davidson claimed there would be no question that the hard-serving girl would make the team. He said she had already beaten some of the boys now on the team.

Miss Eastman and Grover agreed to study the possibility of allowing the Monroe girl to become a test case and to present it to the commissioner.

Miss Barash, who has won tennis tournaments and who has played at Forest Hills, has tried twice to go out for the team, Davidson said. She has been turned down in her junior and senior years by school officials who reportedly want to let her play but are restrained by the state department's rules.

By pressing her case and hiring Davidson, she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barash, have opened up a long-quiet area of education philosophy and law.

4-Hers plan party, voting

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County 4-H Community Clubs have scheduled special meetings this week as follows:

Cherry Valley Community Club will meet Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Warren Bond for an ice skating party and hot dog roast. This will not be a regular club meeting.

Tannersville Community Club will meet Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Pocono Township Firehall for election of officers. Miss Anne Lott of the county extension service will relate her experiences as an International Farm Youth Exchange while in Scotland.

Miss Eastman and Grover said there was the legal question of liability against a school in the event of injury, citing as precedent court cases where injury occurred in athletic contests involving an "unequal matching" of opponents.

Grover said he "would bet" that "if a girl was hurt playing against a boy, and there was a suit, the school would lose."

Davidson said he thought Miss Barash and her parents would be willing to sign waivers.

Incidents nationwide
The girl's attorney also said the question "is starting to crop up all over the country."

He cited women who have become jockeys (to the outrage of male jockeys) and a high school girl at George Washington High in New York City where the swimming coach defied regulations and permitted her to compete with the boys.

"She became co-captain of the team," Davidson said.

The conference came on a day when the Education Department released a new set of guidelines on girls' sports. The new set of rules — which failed to grant permission for girls on teams of boys — was sent to all school superintendents in the state.

Grover, the chief defender Tuesday of the tradition and rules against coed interscholastic teams, said the department's ruling was based, among other things, on the prevailing attitudes of supervisors, teachers, and coaches of physical education.

But he agreed to "re-canvass" leaders in the field later this week at a conference in New York City.

However, he said he really didn't think "we are ready right now" to mix boys and girls on athletic teams — even in non-contact sports.

He said the question was "not physical," but involved how boys ("egos smashed by defeat") might react.

He said the department is worried that too much emphasis on inter-school athletics might tend to harm a school's general physical education program dealing with "the large majority" of youngsters.

U.S. aid fills gold smugglers' void

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Gold smuggling was off in 1968, so it cost the American taxpayer more money to keep the Lao government solvent. It was one of those tangled paradoxes of the U.S. aid program.

And since the smuggling from Laos helps underwrite the economies of Thailand and South Vietnam, countries U.S. aid money also is supporting, the taxpayers' total contributions to the three economies probably was more effective in the long run, Western economic experts say.

Normally Laos imports up to four tons of gold a month from London, Zurich and other world markets. Importers pay 8.5 per cent duty and this in turn makes up 40 per cent of the government tax income. Nearly all the gold is re-exported by smugglers to Vietnam and Thailand. Last year's major offensive in Vietnam and generally tighter policing by Vietnamese and Thai customs drastically cut the gold trade.

The United States and several other countries support whatever budgetary deficit the government incurs indirectly through a currency stabilization program. This program and generally lax taxing policies make it possible to buy premium Scotch whiskey at $3 a bottle on the open market.

Since Vientiane drags its feet on other taxes and the gold flow dropped to a trickle at times, it probably will cost U.S. taxpayers an extra $2 million or so for the currency program, which will run $24 million in U.S. contributions during the current fiscal year.

Despite the gold smuggling paradox, the U.S. aid program in Laos stands as a model in Southeast Asia. More money is spent per capita than even in Vietnam, but Western experts claim that because of tight U.S. controls on all aid spending, "there is far more progress for the buck," as one put it.

With major U.S. support, guidance and occasional arm-twisting, the country appears headed for self-sufficiency in rice in a few years even if war in this area goes on at its same level. Timber exports are soaring. U.S.-backed moves are under way to break the hold of middlemen who have kept farmers in ing and tractors, pumps for farmers, fertilizer and pesticides are pouring in.

economic serfdom for centuries here just as they do throughout most of Southeast Asia.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

You are South, not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents. The bidding has been:

South West North East
 1 NT Pass Pass Dble
 Pass Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 Pass 2 ♥ Pass Pass

What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠K9 ♥KJ10 ♠Q85 ♠AQJ2
2. ♠KQ8 ♥A4 ♠3973 ♠AQJ5
3. ♠KQ65 ♥A8 ♠Q37 ♠AQJ3
4. ♠AK4 ♥1093 ♠QJ2 ♠AQ6

1. Pass. You can't fight City Hall. North obviously has a bad hand. He passed the notrump bid; rescued one notrump bid; and also passed West's two heart bid. He may have 2 or 3 high-card points, but that's the most you can expect. It would be wrong to double, or to bid two notrump or three diamonds. There is too much to be lost and too little to be gained by further action.

2. Three diamonds. The same observation about North's hand apply here also, but with this distribution there is a much firmer basis for competing with a raise to three diamonds.

The potential losers are two diamonds, a spade, a heart, and a club. It is unlikely that three diamonds can be defeated more than a trick, while East-West can probably make two hearts. Obviously, down one at three diamonds, whether doubled or not, is better than two hearts bid and made. Furthermore, partner might have the values to make three diamonds.

3. Three diamonds. Here, also, it is better not to give up. True, partner may not have a face card, but, even so, it is hardly likely that he will be defeated more than one trick. All he needs is five or six diamonds to the 10-9 to have a chance for eight tricks.

Of course, partner may also have a better hand and make nine tricks, but that is not the primary reason for bidding three diamonds. The point is that the opponents can probably make two hearts, and you have a chance of stopping them without great risk to your side. You can't afford to bypass this opportunity.

4. Pass. You have to stay put in this case because there is no way of safely contesting the bidding further. A raise in diamonds could lead to a two or three trick set, and that would be a prohibitive cost if you were doubled.

The potential losers are a spade, two hearts, two diamonds, and one or two clubs. There is a limit to how far you can go in contesting a part score, and this hand — with 4-3-3-3 distribution — is past that limit. Besides, there is a chance of defeating two hearts.

Fairview, though demolished, still stands tall for alumni

This is Brodheadsville's Main Street at the turn of the century when Fairview Academy was a flourishing preparatory school. The village at the time had 500 inhabitants, then situated on the Easton-Wilkes-Barre Turnpike (now Rt. 115). At the time, there were daily stage connections with Stroudsburg and Lehighton.

This is Fairview Academy as it is remembered by many Monroe County residents who once were students and teachers within. It was demolished in 1938, after being built in 1881, and replaced by a service station near the intersection of today's Routes 209 and 115.

The Storm sisters of Brodheadsville, were students at Fairview Academy during its flourishing years. There was, left to right, Bertha, Florence, Ruth, Esther and Margaret. Only two are still living.

Memories linger long after building

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
BRODHEADSVILLE — "We recognize character as the supreme end of education. Our principles of discipline are based upon the sense of duty and right."

This was the principle upon which Fairview Academy was founded in the summer of 1881.

Fairview was to serve as an academic and college preparatory school for hundreds of young people in the West End of Monroe County until 1911 and for another 15 years incorporated the township high school courses until 1926 when Chestnut Hill school (present elementary building) was built.

It was then abandoned as a useless, unnecessary structure for another 10 years, to be replaced in 1938 by a service station.

Mrs. Eva Wetzel who now lives adjacent to the property on which the school stood remembers much of the activity before it was abandoned. The land at the time was part of a farm which belonged to her grandfather, Freeman Slaffer. Mrs. Wetzel said she can still remember the boys on the ball field playing baseball and many times aggravating her grandfather when they were too close to the buildings.

"But one of the big events of the school," Mrs. Wetzel said, "were the Literary Society programs held in the academy every week. Everyone came from the community to enjoy musical recitations and dialogue presentation of classical and popular works of literature."

Among the noted personalities of whom Mrs. Wetzel speaks is Edgar O. Reitz, teacher of English, Latin, German and Pedagogy and principal during 1912-13.

Mrs. Wetzel still corresponds with Reitz who is now 84 years old, residing alone at the Hotel Herbert in San Francisco, Calif.

The aim of the school, as founded by the Lutheran pastor, Rev. George G. Kunkle, was to furnish a sound, practical and thorough education. Students prepared here for college, Normal school, seminary, teaching and practical life. They came from

M. Russell Imbt

M. Russell Imbt, now 75, is pictured here when he was vice principal of the high school at Fairview Academy in 1915. He was principal of the high school in 1917. He left the education field and entered sales in which he is still active. He was formerly president of Stroudsburg Septic Tank Co. and is a district representative for International Boiler Works of East Stroudsburg. He resides with his wife at Craig's Meadows.

all the northeastern states and even from Cuba according to student rosters.

Basically it provided for three courses of study: preparatory (one year), academic (two years) and college preparatory (three years). The regular high school course was incorporated in 1911 until the township public high school was built for Chestnut Hill in 1938.

Preparatory included all basic general education courses with some language instruction.

The academic course provided more profound thinking with continued emphasis in Latin and German; elocution and rhetoric in literature, with such required readings as Longfellow's Evangeline; Irving's Student of Salamanca; Dickens' Cricket on the Hearth; Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare; and other classic works of Hawthorne, Goldsmith, Elliot, Shakespeare, Poe, Tennyson, Cooper, Stevenson, Hugo.

The college prep course concentrated on more Latin and Greek in the third year, both language and literature. There was more rhetoric, Bible history, psychology, chemistry and astronomy. Among the readings were Virgil's Aeneid, Cicero's Orations, Xenophon's Anabasis, Homer's Odyssey and Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Among the costs listed in 1910 for a 10-week term in the preparatory course was eight dollars; one term in college prep, $10; 40 cents per music lesson and 25 cents per term contingent fee. Lodging in the village was three dollars per week for room and board or 15 cents per meal provided by area families.

The Franklin Literary Society brought advantages to students for improvement in composition, elocution and discussion during weekly sessions. There were four different denominations represented for public worship. Formal athletics, including a competitive baseball team were featured.

All candidates for admission were required to give satisfactory evidence of "good moral character."

The essential virtues were always guarded within the "rules" as spelled out: "Loud talking, whistling, scuffling or any other rude or boisterous behavior is strictly forbidden; the use of tobacco in any forms in or about the buildings and the use of intoxicating drinks, profane language or firearms is strictly prohibited; the free and promiscuous mingling of the sexes is not allowed."

With precautions against the "precarious life", it was noted "The Village has no loafing or

Edgar O. Reitz

Edgar O. Reitz is the only one of seven Academy principals still living. He served from 1912 to 1913. He is 84 years old, living in Hotel Herbert, San Francisco, and most recently was under treatment at Notre Dame Hospital. He returned briefly to Monroe County in 1967. Originally he had been an orphan, worked on a farm and later graduated from Muhlenberg College. He followed Howard Creitz who was principal from 1911 to 1912.

gambling places and is entirely free from the thousand-and-one enticements and distractions of the large town or city. For quietness and surroundings conducive to forming studious habits there is no better place."

All of this and more, is what Fairview has meant to its fading alumnus. Those that remain, remember it as a pillar of American education, promotive of manliness of character, self-reliance and self-respect, necessary to an ideal system of self-government.

Area's work force decreases

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg labor market, showed a seasonal drop in area employment and a rise in unemployment, according to the Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security.

Total employment in the Stroudsburg labor market, from October through December, was estimated at 22,800, a seasonal decline of 1,000, said John Dougherty, manager of the Stroudsburg office of the BES.

Employment losses in nonmanufacturing industries, farm employment and the self-employed, unpaid family and domestic workers group were responsible for the drop in area employment as total employment in manufacturing industries remained the same. Last year total employment was estimated at 21,900.

Nonmanufacturing industries employed 14,700, a decline of 700 workers from the October level of 15,400. Seasonal losses of 900 in services industries and a decline of 100 in government workers were partially offset by a gain of 300 seasonal workers in wholesale and retail trades.

The self-employed, unpaid family and domestic workers group showed a seasonal decline of 100, dropping to 2,200 from the 2,300 October level.

Farm employment currently placed at 100 workers was 200 below the October estimate of 300 workers.

Manufacturing industries employed 5,500, the same as October. A gain of 100 in other durable goods was offset by a 100 loss in apparel and related trades.

Total unemployment in Monroe County was estimated at 600 for December, an increase of 300 since October, due to seasonal decline in employment plus withdrawal of seasonal workers. The unemployment percentage increased from October's 1.2 per cent to last month's 2.6.

Unemployment compensation claims, mirroring a three-month unemployment increase, were 282 for mid-week December, an increase of 204 from the 78 claims filed during a comparable week in October.

Last December, area unemployment was estimated as 700 persons, or 3.1 per cent of the civilian work force.

The Stroudsburg Employment Service office had on file at the end of December, 186 unfilled job openings. Many of these job openings came from a new employer opening up in the area.

Jobs are still available for skilled and semi-skilled workers in primary and fabricated metal product industries.

Loading manufacturing and industrial gainers in the area labor market were durable good industries, up two per cent from the same time last year.

Among nonmanufactured industries, wholesale and retail trades showed the largest percentage increase, a three per cent rise over December, 1967.

Model railroaders give out 'passes' to third open house

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Third Annual "Open House" of the Delaware Water Gap Model Engineers will be held at 592 East Broad St., East Stroudsburg, Sunday and again on Feb. 2 from 2 to 6 p.m.

"The Keystone Connecting Lines," which consist of a trolley and a model HO railroad, plus some antique rolling stock can be found in the basement of the above address.

During 1968, the club issued many passes for the "Keystone Connecting Lines" and to date have exchanged about 200 passes with other model railroaders.

Anyone interested in joining the club may contact William

J. Laise at the above address.

During a recent club meeting members pointed out that one-time railroading was the biggest industry in the Stroudsburg with no less than five railroads serving the area plus a trolley.

One could board the trolley in Stroudsburg and with a short walk across the Lehigh and New England Tracks in Portland, ride all the way to Philadelphia.

The birth and death of the Delaware Valley Railroad was also remembered by many of the members. One of the railroad's early 1900 brochures states that round trip fare from New York City to Marshalls Creek was three dollars. The round trip fare from East Stroudsburg to Bushkill was 60 cents.

The line served 36 resorts in the Eastern Poconos. The train carried produce and harvested ice from Bushkill. Students who attended East Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg Normal School also rode the line.

The train made stops at Millford Crossing, Craigs Meadow, Marshalls Creek, Oak Grove, Frutcheys, Echo Lake and Bushkill.

The only remaining station is at Marshalls Creek. The station has been recently refurbished and repainted. The other stations have been dismantled.

Court suit over damage

STROUDSBURG — Jacques H. Meyer, Stroudsburg R.D. 1, has filed suit with the Monroe County Court against George A. LeBar, 85 E. Brown St., East Stroudsburg.

Meyer is asking for a judgment of $360 for repairs and towing costs to his automobile which was damaged in an accident on Sept. 21, 1967. Meyer's daughter, Jeanne, was driving the car at the time of the collision, and Meyer is claiming negligence on the part of LeBar.

Earlier this month LeBar filed suit against Meyer and his daughter in the amount of between $5,000 and $10,000 for injuries which he received in the same accident.

LeBar claimed that Miss Meyer was at fault and charged her with negligence.

County commissioners set deadline for receiving insurance specifications

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners Thursday set a deadline of Jan. 31 for the commission-appointed insurance committee to have the specifications for the bidding of the county insurance policy.

On a motion of Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, it was decided that all six members of the insurance committee will sit as the committee to draw up the specifications.

At one time it had been thought that a smaller committee would be picked to draw up the specifications.

The motion to set the deadline was made by Commissioner Arlington (Bud) Martin and seconded by Mrs. Shukaitis. The vote on the matter was two for the motion with Commission Chairman Elwood Hinte abstaining.

Mrs. Shukaitis also recommended that a letter informing them of the commissioners' decision.

She said a letter would guarantee that all members would receive the same information at the same time.

The specifications will be drawn up using the present figures of values on the present policy which is held by the Joseph H. Small Agency, Stroudsburg. Small is a member of the committee.

New appraisals of the county property could not be made available in time for the bidding of the specifications.

The commissioners were in agreement that the insurance question could bear no further delay.

The commissioners accepted with regret the resignation of Kathleen Fehr, executive secretary and investigator at the Pleasant Valley Manor. Her only stated reason for the move was to seek employment opportunities elsewhere.

The East Stroudsburg Area School District was granted permission to make duplicates of the county's assessment cards with the supervision and control of Chief Assessor William Fetherman.

The duplicates are intended to aid the school district in the collection of taxes.

The commissioners voted to accept the recommendation of Mrs. Kathryn Miller, acting Civil Defense Director, to have the civil service equipment serviced six times per year, and maintained on a year-round basis.

The equipment specifically mentioned by Mrs. Miller was the CD arc welder, trailer and generator.

Mrs. Miller also recommended that the Frank

Buck ESSO Service Station be awarded the contract because of the particular requirement involved and the nearness of the station to the storage shed.

The cost to the county for the six services is approximately $120 per year.

It was noted that during the last emergency when the equipment was required, the equipment was discovered to be inoperable.

The commissioners voted to invest $24,000 of the Liquid Fuels Fund in 90-day treasury bill and also voted to make a slight change in the investment of the Retirement Fund, which totals $320,000.

Of the $320,000 invested in mutual funds, $200,000 will now be invested in variable funds with the same company, Investor's Mutual.

The change was made because it afforded more growth potential. It also will be made at no cost to the county because it is being made within the same company.

Mrs. Judy Marvin was hired as a substitute secretary at a salary of $140 bi-weekly for the Superintendent of County Schools. Mrs. Marvin will work in that office until the return of Miss Elizabeth Nator, who is currently on sick leave.

Hintze noted that the Pleasant Valley Manor Advisory Board had reorganized and announced that Elmer Rinehart was elected chairman; George Royle, vice chairman; and Mrs. Nancy Miller, secretary.

ESSC adds seven to teaching staff

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Frank D. Sills, president of East Stroudsburg State College, Wednesday announced the appointment of seven new faculty members during the regular monthly ESSC board of trustee meeting.

Dr. Clarence J. Murphy of Ithaca, N.Y., will be head of the chemistry department at an annual salary of $14,350. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of New Hampshire and the Doctorate from the University of Buffalo.

Prior to joining the staff of ESSC, Dr. Murphy was chairman of the chemistry department at Ithaca College.

Also joining the science faculty will be Thomas A. Walkiewicz who will be an assistant professor of physics, at a salary of $10,200. Walkiewicz is a graduate of Xavier University in Cincinnati where he received the B.S. in physics. He is presently working on his Ph.D. at Penn State University.

For the last few years, Walkiewicz has been a graduate research assistant at Penn State where he researched in the nuclear physics area.

Raymond A. Welsh of Fritz Ave., Stroudsburg, has been appointed as an assistant professor of Education assigned as a supervisor of student teachers, $10,200.

A graduate of Waynesburg College and the University of Pittsburgh, Welsh was the head of the Department of Health and Physical Education at the East Orange (N.J.) High School.

Joanne DeThomas will be an Instructor of Education assigned to the Campus

Learning Center, at a salary of $8,400. A graduate of Moravian, she earned the M.Ed. at Lehigh University.

Harold J. Pearson will be an Assistant Professor of Spanish, at a salary of $8,400. He is a graduate of American University in Washington and earned his M.A. degree from Middlebury College.

Owner of condemned home withdraws rent offer

For several days this week, this home at 75 N. Third St., Stroudsburg, was offered for rent to prospective tenants at $25 per month. Thursday the landlord withdrew offer to rent the condemned home.

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor

STROUDSBURG — For several days this week there was a real bargain available for a family looking for low-rent housing in Stroudsburg.

A 10-room house on N. Third St. was advertised for rent for $25-a-month.

Sounds great, and several

Woman guilty in fatality

STROUDSBURG — A Monroe County jury Thursday found Mrs. Helen Fetherman, 65, of 2011 N. 5th St., Stroudsburg, guilty of a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

The jury of four women and eight men spent nearly three hours deliberating before reaching the verdict.

The charge of involuntary manslaughter stemmed from an accident on N. Fifth St. in which Mrs. Elsie Transue, 73, was killed on Oct. 2, 1968.

The Fetherman trial began Wednesday with a parade of witnesses for both the Commonwealth and the defense.

Thursday's session concluded with the summations of the attorneys. Monroe County District Attorney Phillip H. Williams argued for the Commonwealth while Attorneys James R. Marsh and James Scanlon served as defense counsel.

Mrs. Fetherman was permitted to remain at liberty on bail and President Judge Arlington W. Williams allowed time for the defense to enter any motions for a new trial before sentencing.

Following the Fetherman verdict, a jury was chosen to hear a trial in which charges of involuntary manslaughter and assault and battery will be combined.

District Attorney Williams made the motion to combine the two indictments because they came out of the same incident in which four individuals are involved.

The trial will begin on Monday at 10 a.m.

Charged with involuntary manslaughter is Allen Kochera, 18, Cresco Rd. 1, and George Wall, 20, 224 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, who is also charged with assault and battery.

Eugene F. Singer, 15 Collins St., Stroudsburg, charged with assault and battery, will be tried with Kochera and Wall. The fourth individual, Stanley F. Bush, East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, charged with assault and battery in the same incident, has already entered a plea of guilty.

The four men were involved in the accident which resulted in the death of John M. Van Burskirk, 19, 144 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, on Oct. 19, 1968.

Attorney James R. Marsh will defend Wall and Singer and Attorney Jerome P. Cheslock will defend Kochera. District Attorney Phillip Williams will head the prosecution.

In other court action, the trial of William J. Palmer, Stroudsburg R.D. 2, charged with driving while intoxicated, got underway.

The Commonwealth presented as its only witnesses Robert E. Dorman and Fred Klee, Pennsylvania State Police, who arrested Palmer.

The defense will present its case today.

Serving on the Fetherman jury were Clifford Lambert and Catherine Abel, both of East Stroudsburg; Estella C. VanVleet, Price Twp.; Jacob Smith, Tobyhanna Twp.; Sterling Schoonover, Middle Smithfield Twp.; John W. Schimmel and Edna F. Ponder, both of Stroud Twp.; Kathryn B. Rohlfing, Smithfield Twp.; Ernest Price, Jackson Twp.; Albert Altemus, Ross Twp.; Raymond M. Andrews, Poik Twp.; and William J. Bossert, Pocono Twp.

Serving on the Palmer jury are Alverna Melick and Lloyd Miller, both of Stroudsburg; John Dougherty, East Stroudsburg; Sheridan Rutz and Walter McClelland, both of Stroud Twp.; Marion J. Koerner and Margaret Neison, both of Paradise Twp.; Adan Bohner and Albert C. Berger, both of Eldred Twp.; Eleanor M. Biles, Barrett Twp.; Jean W. Cramer, Coolbaugh Twp.; and Sterling Schoonover, Smithfield Twp.

A meeting to explain the project to all those interested will be held on Thursday, Feb. 6, at the fire house on S. Courtland St.

The explanation will include a complete explanation of the project and a question and answer session on the subject. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

There are at least 16 members of Acme Hose Co. at the present time who are graduates of the junior firemen ranks.

persons answered the advertisement and were told by the owner to go to Third St. and take a look at the property, which "needed a little fixing up."

What they found almost defies description.

To begin with the property, owned by Ted Cahn of 1801 Quentin Rd., Stroud Twp., has been condemned by the Stroudsburg Board of Health.

Under provisions of the borough's newly-enacted housing code, the home should be boarded up to keep out unsuspecting persons, Harold Snyder, borough manager, pointed out.

It's not, however, because both the front and cellar doors have been ripped off.

Only a few of the windows have panes. There is no heat in the building, no plumbing, no water faucets and the plaster in most of the rooms has fallen from walls and ceilings.

The home, according to the Board of Health, is unfit for human habitation.

The advertisement created a storm of protest and Thursday, Cahn withdrew his offer to rent the home.

Truman Burnett, Board of Health secretary and assistant health officer, said the property, along with three others in the area were condemned Dec. 2, 1968.

Burnett said that he called Cahn Thursday and told him the Board of Health, under no circumstances, would allow the home to be rented.

Under the housing code, Cahn and the owners of the other three properties, have been given 90 days to improve the properties or tear them down.

Burnett said he will not allow the house to be rented until he is shown a contractor's estimate and plans of how the property will be improved.

Notice planned

The assistant health officer also said that if the property is sold he will serve notice of the condemnation on the new owner and will not allow it to be used until improved.

When this reporter called on the telephone Thursday seeking to rent the home, this is how the conversation went:

Reporter: "It sounds like awful cheap rent for a 10-room home."

Cahn: "Well, it needs a little work, but the timber is good. All it needs is a little cleaning up and a little touching up."

Reporter: "Does it have any heat?"

Cahn: "It has an oil heater in the basement, but there are no radiators. I think you would need space heaters. Do you have any children?"

Reporter: "Yes, I have nine."

Cahn: "Wow. Well if you're handy you can fix the place up. The roof on the front porch is sagging, but you could rip the porch right off, you don't need it."

Reporter: "Can I go down and look at it?"

Cahn: "Sure, go ahead, but I have somebody who is interested in it."

Later, I called Cahn and properly identified myself and he said he has given up the idea of renting the home.

"I don't know what all the fuss was about. I think I have a guy who is going to fix it up and use it as a business," Cahn said.

Burnett said the following properties have also been condemned in the Third St. area:

A home at 105 Third St., owned by Ben Adams; a home at 303 Fulmer Ave., owned by Ivan Adams, and a home at 301 Fulmer Ave., owned by E. J. Bartleson.

Burnett said the same provisions apply to these properties. They must be improved in 90 days or the Board of Health will order them demolished. These three homes have been damaged by fire.

Burnett said the new housing code gives the board much more authority to do something about housing in the borough which does not meet sanitary or safety requirements.

The Board of Health meets the last Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal building.

The home of Carlee Jones at 79 N. Third St. is a well-kept property and shows marked contrast to the condemned property next door. Another damaged property on the other side of the Jones home was torn down several years ago.

Area housing council votes to develop low-cost units

STROUDSBURG — The Better Housing Council of Monroe County Thursday night unanimously declared its intent to develop low-cost housing and seek funds from local and federal sources.

Meeting in the Stroudsburg Methodist Church for nearly three hours, the Council decided by intent that it would plan to construct the housing project on the proposed Stofflet St. Neighborhood Redevelopment area.

Stroudsburg Planning Consultant Michael Cabot, who is providing the Council with uncompensated services, outlined the steps the Council must take in order to execute the low cost housing project.

First, Cabot said, the Council must raise from $8,000 to $10,000 in local funds.

A special five-member committee was appointed to devise fund raising plans and also increase the Council's membership. The committee consists of Rev. William C. Leopold, chairman, Alma Nichols, Jesse Lynch, Ruth Steinhauer and Alice Patterson.

The $8,000 to $10,000, Cabot explained, will be 20 percent of a $50,000 Appalachian study grant the council could seek.

Monroe County currently is on the high priority list for Appalachian funds, but the priority will expire July 1, 1969. With the Appalachian grant, the Council can prepare plans for its low cost housing project by hiring an architect, etc.

Once the plan is complete, it would be presented to the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) for approval. When the FHA approval is received, Cabot explained, it is a guarantee that funds to construct the housing project could be obtained from banks at low interest rates.

Since the Better Housing Council is a non-profit organization, the group would receive 100 per cent bank financing. The council's solicitor, Jerome Cheslock, filed the non-profit organization charter which is now awaiting the signature of President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

It was pointed out, however, by some of the more than 15 members attending, that Monroe County banks would not enter into any FHA-connected project. Cabot said that financing could be obtained from banks out of the area.

Although the Housing Council could plan a low income housing project anywhere in the county, the group plans to construct the housing in the Stofflet Street area.

The Stroudsburg Borough Council, on recommendation of the borough Planning Commission, approved a workable program for the Stofflet and Pleasant Valley board hires football coach at $1,000

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pleasant Valley School Board Thursday hired Steve Kun of Palmerton as head football coach at an annual salary of $1,000. The vote was five to three with one absentee.

(Related story on page 14)

Board members Clark George, Virginia Stiff and Netti Roman-scavage cast negative votes with Joseph Decker abstaining. Prior to Kun's hiring, the board went into a 45-minute executive session in an apparent discussion of outgoing football coach Roy Antolick's letter of resignation and the hiring of Kun.

Antolick gave reasons of health in his letter of resignation to the board.

Before the board accepted Kun's $1,000 salary request, board member Joseph Decker made a motion to table Kun's appointment for 30 days to see if anyone else would be interested in the position.

There was no second to Decker's motion, and the board then hired Kun on a motion from board member Jerome Blakeslee.

The board tabled action on a request of a $50 salary increase, from $350 to $400 for Richard Shopack, second assistant football coach.

During December's board meeting, the board approved specifications for the renovation of Polk Elementary School Annex building, which would be partitioned into three classrooms at an estimated cost of $12,000.

At that meeting Mrs. Roman-scavage pointed out to the board that any building improvement on school property should go through the right channels in Harrisburg.

Later board president John Rinker said that in the case of the Polk Elementary Annex, the board would not need state approval for renovations.

But during last night's meeting, board solicitor Lester Brown advised the board that there are certain aspects in the Polk Elementary Annex building renovation specifications which should be approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Instruction and the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

Board members Clark George and Jerome Blakeslee still thought the board should complete renovations on the Annex and then ask for approval from the DPI.

Mills then said he would meet with a DPI member sometime next week to seek approval of renovating the Annex.

High school principal John Nye reported to the board that French should be added to the language department, preferably at the 10th grade level for next year.

He also agreed with Decker that more attention should be given to bolstering English Composition in the high school.

Decker pointed out that one of a college freshmen's biggest problems is mastering freshman English.

League launches electoral study

STROUDSBURG — The first in a series of studies of the electoral college, sponsored by the Monroe County League of Women Voters was held Thursday night in the conference room of Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co.

Dr. John C. Appel, Dean of Liberal Arts at East Stroudsburg State College, discussed with more than 50 members and guests, the subject "The Electoral College in Historical Perspective."

(Related picture, page eight)

Dr. Appel outlined several of the proposals for correcting the weaknesses of the process for electing the president, with pros and cons on each alternative. He did not take a stand on any one choice as the ideal proposal.

Dr. Appel said there has been concern for correction of the electoral college system since 1800, with more than 100 proposals made since then.

Dr. Appel explained three proposals which would either reform the present procedure or entirely abolish and replace it.

First, "proportional voting" would be based on the popular vote in percentage, applied to the number of electors in the state.

In Pennsylvania, as an example, the 29 electors would be applied as follows: if the popular vote percentage were 39 per cent for Nixon and 43 per cent for Humphrey, Nixon would have received 14 and Humphrey 15 electoral votes accordingly.

This does not represent districts which elected the electors and limits states' rights.

Second, "single member districts" would take the plurality votes of each district and the elector of that district would vote for the man who gets the plurality in that district.

A meeting to explain the project to all those interested will be held on Thursday, Feb. 6, at the fire house on S. Courtland St.

The explanation will include a complete explanation of the project and a question and answer session on the subject. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Gertrude Schook dies at home

She was the widow of the late Oscar S. Schook.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home.

Steve Kun named PV grid coach

BRODHEADSVILLE — Steve Kun is the new head football coach at Pleasant Valley High School.

Kun was hired Thursday night by the Pleasant Valley School Board members after it had accepted the resignation of Roy Antolick. Antolick had been head coach of the Bears for the past two years but was forced to resign for health reasons.

Kun, 28, served as an assistant to Antolick for the last two years and had been the number one candidate for the job ever since Antolick's resignation became known two weeks ago.

John C. Mills, supervising principal, said, "We are fortunate to have a boy with the talents of Steve in our system to step in as head coach. He is an excellent worker with boys, and he seems to have the respect of all the players."

Kun graduated from Palmerston High School in 1961 and still lives in that town with his wife and young daughter. While playing for the Bombers he was an outstanding fullback and also earned letters in track.

He received a scholarship to Wichita University but transferred to East Stroudsburg State after his freshman season.

After sitting out a year he lettered the next two as an offensive fullback for coach Jack Gregory.

Red Wings, Boston in 2-2 tie

DETROIT (UPI)—Frank Mahovlich's second goal, just 1:45 into the final period, offset two second-period goals by Ken Hodge as the streaking Boston Bruins and hot Detroit Red Wings skated to a 2-2 tie Thursday night in a fiery National Hockey League game.

The tie preserved Boston's second longest unbeaten streak and extended it to 12 games while Detroit has lost but once in its past nine games. The East Division-leading Bruins' longest streak of 23 games came in the 1940-41 season.

Mahovlich's 20th goal of the season came on a play similar to his first goal when the Detroit left wing took a pass from Gordie Howe on the opposite side of the net and slammed the puck past Boston goalie Ed Johnston, making his first appearance in Detroit since he was struck on the head here Oct. 31 by a Boston player's practice shot.

Penguins bow, 3-1, to North Stars

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A second-period goal by Danny O'Shea paced the Minnesota North Stars to a 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins Thursday and a share of fifth place with the Penguins in the West Division of the National Hockey League.

O'Shea scored what turned out to be the winning goal at the 9:57 mark of the middle session when he took control of a loose puck and beat Penguin goalie Les Binkley from 15 feet away.

O'Shea also assisted on Minnesota's first goal by Claude Larose and Andre Boudrias scored unassisted at 13:58 of the third period. Charlie Burns registered Pittsburgh's goal to deprive Cesare Maniago of a shutout.

The contest was less than two minutes old when Larose scored with Dick Mattioli of Pittsburgh sitting out a two-minute high-sticking penalty. Larose fired a 20-footer from the left side,

Flyers tie Hawks, 2-2

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dick Sarrazin and Jean-Guy Gendron scored power-play goals only 16 seconds apart in the second period Thursday night to bring the Philadelphia Flyers from behind and produce a 2-2 tie with the Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League game.

It was the fourth straight game without a win for the Hawks, beaten in their last three starts, while the deadlock preserved the Flyers' hold on fourth place in the Western Division race.

The Black Hawks were short two men, with both Gilles Marotte and Bobby Hull in the penalty box when Sarrazin grabbed a rebound and drove it past Denis DeJordy to tie the game at 5:15 of the second period. Sarrazin's goal freed Hull from the penalty box, but Marotte, who had drawn a major for drawing blood on a boarding call, still was off the ice when Gendron picked up a loose puck in the crease and scored at 5:31.

Gendron's goal gave the Flyers a 2-1 lead which lasted less than four minutes before Doug Mohns got a pass from Stan Mikita at the corner of the crease on a power play and scored for the Hawks. Chicago's first goal went to Howie Young, playing center for the second time this season.

Seals down Canadiens

MONTREAL (UPI)—Bob Dillabough scored on a breakaway late in the third period Thursday night to give the Oakland Seals a 5-3 victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

The Canadiens had just tied the score 3-3 less than four minutes earlier when Dillabough stole the puck from Montreal forward Henri Richard and skated in all alone on Canadian goalie Rogatien Vachon. Dillabough pulled Vachon out of the nets before putting the puck behind him.

Francis, who served in a dual role as coach-general manager from Dec. 6, 1965 through the end of last season, will serve as the interim coach until Geoffrion indicates he can return.

Ratelle and Gilbert gave the Rangers a 2-0 lead in the first period after taking passes from Hadfield. Ratelle beat Los Angeles goalie Gerry Desjardins with a 15-foot backhand at 7:28 for his 13th goal of the season and Gilbert followed at 14:26 just a few moments after he missed an easy shot in the front of the King net.

Joyal's 16th goal came in the opening minutes of the second period

Roth's pin gives Cavs 24-19 win

EAST STROUDSBURG—East Stroudsburg won the final five bouts as they halted Pocono Mountain's winning streak.

Pete Wash remained unbeaten for the Cardinals while Nate Reddicks is now 6-1 and Gary Stiff is 5-1-1.

Remaining unbeaten for the Trojans, now 4-1-1 in the league, are Bob Plarr, Earl Kunkle and Frank Wilth.

Koith Miller's fall in the unlimited bout gave the Knights their third league win in six outings. The winners are 3-4 overall.

The only other pinner for Pen Argyll was Wally Koeher (156).

Dave Gubitosi of Southern Lehigh remained unbeaten (7-0) with an 8-0 decision at 129 pounds.

The Panthers lost only two bouts in handling Bangor its sixth straight L-N setback.

The Slater's only winners were Ralph Brewer on a decision at 158 and Ed Nelson on a fall in the heavyweight class.

Heltown (5-0-1) won the first eight bouts, four on pins as it built up a 3-4-0 lead.

Bob Jones (182) then knotted the score at 19-14 with a second period fall and set the stage for Roth. Roth was equal to the job and pinned Ken Ritter in the third period.

Until the late Cavalier spurt only Wade Snyder, on a decision, and Ken Kunkle, on a draw, put points on the board.

Rangers top LA, Gilbert scores two

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rod Gilbert scored two goals and Jean Ratelle added a goal and two assists Thursday night as the New York Rangers responded to new coach Emile Francis with a 3-1 victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

Vic Hadfield, the third member of the Gilbert-Ratelle line, set up all three goals to give him a career high of 23 assists for the season.

Eddie Joyal scored the only goal for the Kings, who had their three-game winning streak ended.

Just minutes before they took the ice for the National Hockey League contest, the New York players learned that Boom Geoffrion had been relieved of his coaching duties for at least three weeks under medical instruction. Geoffrion, who is suffering from a stomach ailment, collapsed last Friday night following a game in Oakland.

Francis, who served in a dual role as coach-general manager from Dec. 6, 1965 through the end of last season, will serve as the interim coach until Geoffrion indicates he can return.

Stroudsburg stuns Hornets

EMMAUS — Gary Raymond's clutch victory in the heavyweight bout carried Stroudsburg to a 22-18 win over Emmaus Thursday night and a share of first place in the Lehigh Valley Wrestling League.

The Mounties, Hornets and Northampton are all 4-1 for the season and should finish the regular season as tri-champions for the second straight year.

Stroudsburg led 19-18 going into the final bout but Raymond came through with his finest effort of the season as he blanked Dave Lesak, 3-0. Following a scoreless first period, Raymond scored a reversal late in the second period. He then rode Lesak the entire third period to pick up an additional time point.

Rain halts 1st round of Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—With about a third of the field still out, the first round of the $150,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am was cancelled Thursday, thus depriving Billy Casper, Harry Toscano and Mac McLendon a share of the lead.

Jack Tuthill, PGA tournament director, called off play because of continuing rain and flooded conditions on all three courses used in the tourney at 4 p.m. PST.

Play was suspended at Spyglass Hill an hour before in order to brush water from the fairways and greens. When the effort proved fruitless and players complained bitterly of the conditions, Tuthill reluctantly called a halt.

Casper settled down after a near disastrous front nine to shoot a two-under par 38-32-70 at Cypress Point, Toscano, a 26-year-old native of Newcastle, Pa., now in his third year on the tour, and McLendon shot matching 70s at tougher Pebble Beach.

The first round will be played in its entirety on Friday and the tournament will be extended a day through Monday.

Casper settled down after a near disastrous front nine to shoot a two-under par 38-32-70 at Cypress Point, Toscano, a 26-year-old native of Newcastle, Pa., now in his third year on the tour, and McLendon shot matching 70s at tougher Pebble Beach.

This is nothing new for the Crosby, which once was wiped out altogether, and on other occasions lost days because of rain, gale winds and even snow. Earlier this week, the Kaiser International Open at Napa, Calif., was shortened to just 36 holes because of three days of continuous rains.

Bill Rigney hospitalized after spell

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—California Angels manager Bill Rigney felt faint while playing in the opening round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament Thursday and was taken to Monterey Hospital, where officials first announced he had suffered a heart attack.

Dr. Donald Scanlon, who examined Rigney at the hospital, described his condition as "good" and said he would be kept in the hospital overnight for observation.

"He could be released in the morning," said Dr. Scanlon. "It all depends on how he feels." Earlier, a hospital spokesman said Rigney had suffered a heart attack and then described his condition as "fair."

Diver Hank Spangler kept his unbeaten record in tact. The Warriors are now 4-1 for the season.

The last of a breed

There's something sad about a great animal becoming extinct. I mean, you take the Great Plains bison, the pterodactyl, the gooney bird. The great Pacific gray whales were saved from the point of extinction. Elephants are disappearing. The dinosaur, the unicorn, the woolly mammoth, the sabertoothed tiger. No matter how predatory, they had an awe about them not found in dogs, cats, ponies or possums.

And now, another distinct species is about to fade into a drawing in the encyclopedia—the Homo Manageris Pugilatus, the Neanderthal Man Sport, the ever-loving fight manager.

You know the breed, if you ever went to fight films. He comes in two categories, hard-bitten, cynical, calloused (Sheldon Leonard?) grabbing the fighter by the lapels and hissing, "Listen, kid, you listen to me and throw this fight or you, me AND that fancy broad of yours are going to wind up in two tons of concrete on the bottom of the East River." Or, he's the sentimental old gaffer (Jimmy Gleason?) who only pretends he's tough and who only pretends he's tough and who pleads with the kid not to try one last fight.

There were colorful rogues like Jack Kearns who took the position the fighter was just kind of an unnecessary extension of his own wily movements ("I beat Willard and Carpenter," is the refrain for victory, but "The fighter didn't listen," is for defeat). There was Al Weil, now languishing in an institution, who moved for years in ungrammatical, gravelly-stained eminence up and down Jacobs' Beach in New York, pretending match-making was an abstract art like architecture or building a ship in a bottle.

The last of the breed is in town now. George Egbert Gainford, an imperious man of such regal and disdainful bearing that the fight mob calls him "The Emperor." George walks around as if he had just ordered his coachman flogged, or the queen beheaded.

George's great fighter was Walker Smith, whom he turned into "Sugar Ray Robinson" one night when the underaged fighter had to assume another identity or miss the Golden Gloves.

An indifferent fighter himself, George (who was born in South Carolina, but inherited a sing-song manner of speech from parents raised in Guinea) learned his craft by ferrying amateur fighters all over the Eastern seaboard in the early twenties for amateur smokers. (Once, when a hired chauffeur bumped the price at the last minute, George himself majestically took the wheel and drove from Harlem to Syracuse in first gear, throwing up a cloud of smoke which still drifts down the Mohawk Valley on cold nights).

George put in his time, stopping cuts with popsize sticks, slicing swellings with razors, sleeping in car trunks on nights when the bedbugs were winning nine rounds to none on all cards.

His relationship with Robinson began on a prophetic note: Ray lied to him. "He said he needed a fight 'cause his mother was being put out by the landlord," George recalls. "I called his mother and said, 'This is terrible' and she said, 'What's terrible?'"

Robbie's next move was as pretty a feint as he ever threw. George completely outfitted him for a sub-volant fight and Ray—and the equipment—disappeared. George ran into him on the street sometime later and said, "Smitty, pay up or fight for me," and George—and Robinson—stepped into a world of caviar, Cadillacs, cutaways and chauffeurs. Sugar Ray hardly ever got a nose-bled 'til he ran into the clumsy English mulatto, the tragic Randy Turpin, whose style was so unorthodox a lion couldn't bite him.

Sugar Ray and an entourage bigger than the cast of Aida toured Europe that year at a cost of $84,000. Gainford was the one who went around turning on the lights, and counting the change, and cutting down on the petty thefts. He never fawned on Sugar Ray, calling him "Robinson" to his face from the height of his career to the end of it, and trying to keep the free-wheeling Robinson from shedding money like leaves in an autumn wind.

The epaulettes are faded on the emperor's shoulders. Gone are Robinson and the Oysters Rockefeller, the fuchsia Caddies, the suites at the George Cinq. George is in town with a journeyman Jamaican named Bunny Grant, who will never get champion past any headwaiters. Bunny fights the Mexican lightweight champion, Arturo Lomeli, in one of four 10-rounders at the Forum tonight.

It may be your last chance to see a genuine living 20th century fossil, the American fight manager, who may soon go to the Smithsonian to join Lindbergh's airplane, open trolleys, and the old noken bucket.

SEC votes to 'bank' football scholarships

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A sweeping change in football scholarships that would enable a Southeastern Conference school to "bank" up to five grants from one year to the next and do away with the league's controversial overall limit was approved Thursday by SEC coaches and athletic directors.

The plan, an adaptation of a proposal made by the University of Alabama, will be offered today to the presidents of the 10 SEC schools when they hold their annual winter meeting here. Only the presidents can take official action on the proposed change.

The proposal would keep the current limit at 40 new football grants at the start of any two-year period but allow the school to give up to 45 such scholarships the second year provided it gave out no more than 35 the first.

"We have spent about a day at each of our annual meetings arguing about grants," said Auburn athletic director Jeff Beard, chairman of the AD-coaches group. "It's been a continuous bone of contention ever since we first set a limit back in 1965."

But Beard said it was the general consensus at Thursday's closed meeting that the Alabama proposal may be the best solution yet offered. It would be a substitute for the present rule and, in effect, wipe out the conference's overall limit on football scholarships.

The present rule, adopted at last year's meeting in Tampa, Fla., sets a limit of 40 new football scholarships each year with a total of no more than 125 football players on scholarship in school at any one time.

A group of coaches led by Georgia's Vince Dooley argued that SEC teams had to liberalize their grants-in-aid in order to compete against teams from outside the SEC which have more liberal provisions.

The issue reached a head when the top three SEC teams were all beaten in post-season bowl games in recent weeks.

Beard said six different proposals involving grants-in-aid were made at Thursday's meeting. "They ranged all the way from keeping things as they are now to raising the yearly limit to 45 and doing away with all overall limits," Beard said.

Beard said that the best thing about the "banking" proposal was that "every year is not a good recruiting year. Some years there just aren't enough good players to fill your quota."

Beard noted that this banking proposal would involve only players who have been signed prior to Aug. 31 each year. A school would be able, as it is now, to replace immediately any prospective players who fail to pass the school's entrance examination.

In other action Thursday, the coaches and athletic directors recommended: —That athletes be permitted to obtain student loans the same as other students without regard to the fact that they may be on the athletic scholarships.

—That basketball officials' salaries be raised from $100 to $125 per game and that football officials' pay climb from $150 to $200. "Some college football officials have been turning to pro football where the pay is higher," Beard said.

—That the conference rule on junior college transfers be changed to conform more nearly with NCAA rules so that a junior college graduate might become immediately eligible to play for an SEC team.

Namath to receive Halas Award

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Joe Namath of the New York Jets, who overcame personal injuries to lead his team to the world championship of professional football, Thursday was named winner of the George Halas award as the "most courageous" player of the year by the Professional Football Writers of America.

Namath, who played the entire year on a terribly weak knee, also was honored throughout the season by a dislocated thumb on his throwing hand, but never missed a game while leading the Jets to the American Football League championship and a 16-7 triumph over the Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl.

"The 25-year-old quarterback of the Jets beat out Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins in the balloting for the award. Jurgensen, a veteran quarterback, played the entire season with a plastic cast around his rib cage.

Twenty-one players received votes, including one for "any Eagle quarterback."

Doctors order Geoffrion to take three-week rest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, suffering from an ailing stomach and a last place team, was ordered by doctors Thursday to take a complete three-week rest from his coaching duties with the New York Rangers.

Emile Francis, the club's general manager and the man whom Geoffrion replaced as coach at the start of this season, will handle the coaching duties during Geoffrion's absence.

Despite repeated rumors during the last two weeks that Geoffrion would be fired as the New York coach, Francis insisted that "Boomer" is the coach today, will be the coach tomorrow, and will be the coach three weeks from now.

It will be up to Geoffrion and the doctors to decide at the end of that time if he will be able to resume his coaching duties.

Geoffrion's playing career, which included 14 seasons with Montreal and a comeback with the Rangers in 1966 following his retirement, came to a sudden end during the playoffs last season when he suffered a recurrence of stomach trouble. Half of his stomach has been removed and he still suffers from ulcers.

The Boomer collapsed in Oakland last Friday night after the Rangers had beaten the Seals 3-1. The collapse was caused by a lack of sugar in his blood stream. After being released from the hospital, Geoffrion handled the Rangers in practice sessions Tuesday and Wednesday.

After moving into first place in the east division of the National Hockey League with a 4-2 victory at Montreal Dec. 4, the Rangers collapsed badly and were in last place prior to Thursday night's game against Los Angeles.

Francis said that in spite of the club's recent showing and Geoffrion's attack, it was still his intention to allow the Boomer to continue coaching.

"But he never let on to me how bad it was," Francis said. "There is no way a fellow could carry on if he isn't 100 per cent. He went to the doctor's today and it was decided he should take the rest."

"I want to make it clear I am an interim coach. This is a trying time, but I'm positive I'll be back 100 per cent."

The decision for the rest was reached after consultation between Dr. Charles L. Madden and Dr. Kazuo Yanagisawa. Dr. Madden is the surgeon who operated on Geoffrion last spring.

Geoffrion, speaking in a subdued voice, said: "I feel very bad to leave the club like this in last place. I won't take responsibility for what happened to this club. Maybe some games I wasn't up for, but I did my best."

"There is sometimes injustice in life, but I'll say this: Emile Francis gave me a chance to come back and play in the NHL and to coach in the NHL. As far as I'm concerned I did my best with this club and it's not my fault if my health isn't good enough to continue. I love this game too much to quit like this."

It was not stated where Geoffrion, who fought back tears as he spoke, will spend the three weeks. But Francis said, "It will be in seclusion with his wife. He'll be going where he can get a little sun and rest."

Joe, Mick uncertain about '69

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mickey Mantle and Joe Namath both don't know whether they'll play next season.

Each said as much Thursday when they got together at Namath's restaurant here as part of a publicity campaign to promote the American Astrojet Golf Classic in which both will participate in La Costa, Calif., Feb. 13-16.

Mantle, 37, said he wouldn't make up his mind about continuing at first base with the New York Yankees until he undergoes a workout in spring training in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"I'm going to spring training and I'm gonna try working out a week or 10 days," said Mantle. "At the end of that time I'll see how my knees and legs feel. That's when I'll decide whether to keep going or not."

Namath, 25, who also has trouble with his knees, having undergone three different operations on them, revealed the way he felt about continuing to play football with the world champion New York Jets when someone came by and said to him he probably would be "the hottest football player in the country next season."

"If I play next season," Namath replied. "The way my knee is kicking up, I may not play."

Namath has numerous outside interests, including a restaurant chain in Florida called Broadway Joe's and one here called The Bachelors III. In addition, he also has been sought out recently regarding a possible moving picture career.

He and Mantle are both listed to play together in the American Astrojet Classic.

Seibern named Braves scout

ATLANTA (UPI)—Norm Seibern, who played in three World Series and two all-star games, was named Atlanta Braves scout in Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri Thursday.

Seibern retired from Boston last year after 12 years in the major leagues. He had played outfield and first base for New York, Kansas City, Baltimore, California, San Francisco and Boston.

Seibern, 35, is a resident of Independence, Kan.

The Green Thumb

Tomatoes not consistent

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent

WHAT'S THE BEST TOMATO? Each year about this time I receive letters asking me for the name of the best tomato variety. Actually, there's no one best variety for all soils and localities. Tomatoes vary in performance even in gardens 100 feet apart.

Sometime ago one of my readers wrote of his experience growing tomatoes.

He writes: "Last year I was about to give up growing tomatoes. I planted a dozen plants on a hillside above my farm land, and 11 of the plants were normal, but the 12th one—there was no stopping its growth. After staking it in the usual way (used stakes 30 feet high), I spent $300 for framing lumber to do a better job. The first tomato to get ripe on this plant was so big and heavy it broke from the vine, rolled down hill, smashed into my barn, totally demolishing it. The impact killed my prize bull and 16 cattle. "Just the other day I noticed some strange mounds of snow where my barn used to stand. Shoveling the snow away from one of those mounds, I discovered a tomato seed six feet long, three and one-half thick, and weighing 72 pounds. If any of your readers are interested in some of these seeds, they're welcome to them."

FREE: Pretty soon you'll be starting your own seeds of flowers and vegetables. You can avoid a lot of troubles such as blighting and damping-off if you read my bulletin, "How to Start Flowers and Vegetables from Seed." My guide is full of good tips for starting your own plants.

CITRUS FRUITS INDOORS: Home owners are showing a great deal of interest in growing citrus plants indoors. The penderosa lemon (Citrus leuocarpa) is grown for its foliage as well as flowers and fruits. Flowers give off a perfume hard to beat and the leaves also emit a lemony aroma if bruised.

The dwarf orange, Clabette (Oh-tuh-hee-tee) produces a crop of bright fruit all at one time after the summer flowering. Usually, they ripen around Christmas and later. You can also buy dwarf lemons and pomegranates for indoor growing. All citrus can usually be grown from seed, but when you do, fruiting and flowering are erratic, and the fruit is bitter. Foliage from seed-grown citrus is attractive. If you want edible fruit, buy budded plants from your florist or nurseryman.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "An automobile slid into our tree and the bark was skinned off one side. What can be done to save the tree?"

Answer: Take a sharp knife and trim off the edge of the wound (bark) to enable it to heal over. The tree will form new bark which will seal over the bare wound. I wouldn't cover the exposed trunk area with a dressing, and don't bother to paint it with house paint! Most of these materials break away, leaving a space where spores and insects can congregate. If the wounded area is exposed to air, it has a good chance of healing over. Your tree has a good chance of healing, so don't worry about it.

LEG COLOR: (Q.) Is it right for me to wear colored stockings to school? You know, like red nylons with my red dress, blue with my blue dress, etc? Or are they just for evenings and special occasions?
F. in West Virginia

(A.) Regular weight red, green, brown, black, or taupe pantyhose that match your clothes look nice for casual and dress wear. They are suitable for school.

Sheer blue or sheer red nylons are different. They're for dress-up use, not for school. And they're really not so good now — for special events — as darker or glitter stockings.

Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Head him off now

By JEAN ADAMS

STOP SIGN: (Q.) Help! This guy is terribly sweet, but he just doesn't understand.

I've been talking quite a bit with him. I've gone to one movie with him and out to eat after two basketball games. He's really nice, but I don't want to be labeled as "going with him" or anyone else at present.

He asked a couple of my best friends whether to get a ring or an ID bracelet for my birthday. If he decides on either one, and I keep it, I'll either have to wear it and lose the active interest of other boys, or stick it in my drawer and feel miserable.

It's three weeks till my birthday. How can I change his plans and still not hurt him?

A Reader in Detroit

(A.) You may have to hurt him. This will be better than hurting him worse by letting him stumble ahead and give you a gift that spells "steady."

Tell him — NOW — you are not serious enough about any boy to settle on one now. Tell him you are not in a bracelet or ring mood and don't expect to be any time soon.

Ann Landers

Sauce for gander

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the woman who stumbled over two very close relatives in the backyard — her husband and her sister. They were locked in loving embrace and the time was 5 a.m.

Your advice was "forgive and forget — and then forget what you forgave." Neat phrasing, Ann, but easier said than done. And now I am writing to ask, what should a husband do when he stumbles over his wife and his boss, in his very own living room — asleep, the both of them, on the sofa at 3 a.m.?

True, I was not expected until the following day, but it's a fine How-Have-You-Been when a man can't go home without warning his wife in advance so she can clear the guy out.

Our marriage was a good one, or so I thought. We have three terrific kids — one in prep school and two in college. My wife doesn't want a divorce and neither do I. She claims Mr. X drove her home from a party and came in for a nightcap and they had too many.

My wife forgave me for a little affair three years ago and now she says it's my turn to be noble and compassionate. Somehow I think a man is entitled to an occasional indiscretion but a wife should live by a different set of rules. Maybe I'm old-fashioned but this is the way I see it. Please back me up. Thanks.

SHAFTED

Dear Shaft: Thanks for what? You are looking for support for a weak argument and you've rattled the wrong cage, Bub. My advice to the cuckolded husband is the same advice I give to the wife who had been cheated on — forgive and forget, then be big enough to forget what you forgave.

Voice of Broadway

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK — Sonny Wortzik, who deserves most credit for building the N.Y. Jets into Super Bowl champs, is rumored eyeing the L.A. Rams. Famous artist "Zita" died recently in Fla. Ex-footballer Irene Hayes went back to the hospital to have an appendix glorified. ... Sam Yorty gave Joe DiMaggio a tour of our neighborhood restaurant "Louie's" so many compliments about her food the other night you'd think she voted in L.A. ... Sam was there with newspaper tycoon Henry Harkness and his Anne. ... Our deepest sympathy to Jersey City former Mayor John Kennedy, whose fine wife just died.

Mrs. George Halas Jr. (of the Chi. Bears' family) undergoes surgery at Billings Hospital there. ... "Hair" producer Michael Butler's lawyers filed for divorce against his estranged wife Joyce in Wheaton, Ill.; she previously pitched for a N.Y. amulet but the case was dismissed. ... Art Lund gets one of the big parts (Virgil) in William Inge's musicalization of "Bus Stop," to be titled "Beau," due on Broadway next September. ... "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" is UA's biggest grossing hard ticket (roadshow) ever.

Jean-Paul Belmondo's voice in his next film "The Brain" will come as a surprise to U.S. ears: it's his first role really speaking English; the rest were dubbed by other voices. Boobies of the month: Playbill's program for "Great White Hope" at the Alvin had biographies of eight "Mane!" cast members by mistake: Dionne Warwick's newest album "Promises, Promises" lists Lionel Bart's "Where is Love" from "Oliver" as by Cy Coleman and Dorothy Fields; Beryl Reid who plays the lesbian in "The Killing of Sister George" received a hospitality toiletry set from Macy's addressed to "Mr. Beryl Reid".

Longtime Copacabana handyman decided to retire and live in Italy; imagine the old gent's delighted consternation when Cop owner Julie Podell handed him a check for $16,000 — from the cafe's profit-sharing and pension fund. ... The Yankees' Joe Pepitone may have an off-diamond flash.

Cybernetic sex: farms now have computer-mating for cows and bulls.

Wonder if people in Ireland are buying N.Y. State lottery tickets. ... Yacht builders (the Hatteras firm) cautions buyers not to paint their black and white. "They disturb the eyes and eventually the stomach"; and "hot" colors (orange or red) "make one feel miserable on a hot day on the water or in port"; such problems. ... Kids living with adults who smoke are ill more frequently than in non-smoking homes, another survey notes.

Walter Lippmann's retiring again. ... Julie Nixon Eisenhower's favorite song is "The Impossible Years" (asked bandleader Bill Harrington to play it at her wedding reception); we trust it's a romantic choice, not political. ... Zucky's 3rd Ave. deli sign: "Get Rid of Unnecessary Fat — Divorce Her". ... The Apollo 8 moonshot gave "2001: A Space Odyssey" a huge boxoffice boost; MGM ought to give Apollonauts Anders, Botman and Lovell life passes.
